Canada Needs High Power Radio Chain Delegations Assert

Radio Commission Urged to Increase License Fees, Subsidize Efficient Stations, Place Ban On Advertising in Chain Broadcasts and Create Education Programme Policy.

Canada should establish a permanent commission to direct radio; create a chain of super-powered broadcasting stations, operated under a system which would encourage private enterprise and initiative; accord financial support to the lower powered privately-operated stations which are efficiently managed and provide programmes of high standard; establish a definite policy of education work, and finance the development of an efficient system of broadcasting by means of increased fees collected rigidly from all owners of radio sets.

The above recommendations were supported by four delegations which this morning waited upon the Royal Commission on Broadcasting at its public sessions at the Parliament Buildings.

"We would like to receive from the people of British Columbia a full and frank statement of what they need in broadcasting. We hope that, within two months, we will be able to submit our report to the Government," said Sir John Aird, chairman of the commission, when opening the proceedings.

Harold Grant, on behalf of 300 members of the Victoria Radio Club, presented a recommendation that a chain of government-owned, but privately-operated, super-power stations be created, to use the clear wave bands. Small stations should be accorded Federal subsidy for approved educational broadcasts, he also recommended, as well as an increase in license fees for radio receivers, from $1 now collected to $2.50 annually.

The recommendations presented had been endorsed at a well attended public meeting, and Mr. Grant presented a folio of letters, with a largely signed petition, asking better Canadian broadcasting.

PAY WILLINGLY

"Everyone is willing to pay their proportion of the cost if they get adequate returns," he assured the commission.

Sir John Aird asked for further explanation of the licensing system advocated by the Victoria Radio Club, and was told it would substitute a license attached to the set, for the present system of licenses issued to set users.

Commissioner Bowman congratulated the Radio Club upon the great care evident in the preparation of its views.

Dorothie M. Parsons and Mrs. James Merrix Will Compete at To-night's Session

Voices of Boy Soloists Praised in To-day's Festival Results

Interest in the Musical Festival was maintained to-day with four adjudicators busily engaged at four centres.

The outstanding event of the morning sessions was the mezzo-soprano class competing for the gold medal presented by the president of the association, George F. Watson.

Out of twelve competitors two Victoria vocalists were sent as finalists to to-night's session, these being Dorothie M. Parsons and Mrs. James Merrix.

The adjudicator was Dr. Proterde, who, in the course of his remarks, highly complimented Mrs. Clifford Warn, thanking her for her really excellent accompaniments. He wished some of the competitors had taken a cue from her on some occasions as to the proper key.

New Though Temple—Mrs. Stanley D. Skene, adjudicating.

COURT TO RULE ON SHIP CLAIMS

C.P.R. Asks $60,000 and Norwegian Co. $40,000 as Result of Collision

Vancouver, April 17—Judgment was reserved in the Admiralty Court here to-day by Mr. Justice Martin on the damage claims of Fred Olsen & Company of Oslo, Norway, and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, arising out of a collision of their respective steamers, the Hampholm and the Princess Adelaide, in English Bay December 19 last.

The trial opened yesterday morning and argument by counsel was concluded at noon to-day.

Fred Olsen & Company claims $40,000 for the Hampholm's twisted stem and battered bow. The C.P.R. Company's claim for a six-foot hole in the Princess Adelaide's side is $60,000.

The accident occurred during a dense fog three miles southwest of Prospect Point, when the Hampholm was slowly moving to an anchorage and the Princess Adelaide was admittedly forging ahead at a ten-knot clip.

Whether the Hampholm ran down the coastal steamship, or whether the Princess Adelaide impaled herself on the Norwegian freighter's bow is a question to be solved by Mr. Justice Martin.

Constitution Of Monaco Restored

Monte Carlo, April 17.—The constitution of the principality of Monaco, which was abrogated recently, has been put into force again by a solemn proclamation by Prince Louis promulgated yesterday.

The return to constitutionality in Monaco marked a decisive step in the battle of the 700 or 800 electors of the tiny principality for a more liberal government of the famous gambling centre.

Only last month a "bloodless revolution" threatened to storm Prince Louis in his ancestral palace and a delegation obtained assurances the constitution would be observed and an election held June 1.

NORTH PACIFIC-ARGENTINA PLANE LINKS ARE FORESEEN

New York, April 17.—Two of the greatest aeronautical corporations of this country, controlling thousands of miles of airways in the southern and central United States, were in agreement to-day to co-operate and exchange traffic on lines which ultimately will extend from Seattle to South America, and possibly from Alaska to Buenos Ayres.

The corporations are the Aviation Corporation of the Americas, which owns the Pan-American Airways and the United Aircraft and the Air Transport Corporation, which controls the Boeing Air Transport and a [illegible] Airways.

The agreement was revealed in the announcement of Richard F. Hoyt, chairman of the Aviation Corporation, that the United Aircraft and the Air Transport Corporation had purchased 5,000 shares of the capital stock of the Aviation Corporation, representing a value of approximately $3,000,000.

PLANE IS MAKING SEATTLE-ALASKA SURVEY FLIGHT

Four Men Aboard Machine Scouting For New Air Passenger Service

Seattle, April 17—On a survey of the route for operation of an air passenger service between Seattle and Southeastern Alaska, the Gorst Air Transport's eight-passenger amphibian plane took the air early to-day from Lake Union here.

The craft was flown by Clayton L. Scott and Verne C. Gorst, head of the transport company, was seated as co-pilot. Gordon Graham, mechanic, and A. C. Iverson, a passenger, were also in the plane.

When the fliers left here stops were scheduled at Alert Bay, Prince Rupert, Ketchikan, Petersburg and Juneau.

The party hopes to fly back to Seattle within ten days.

WEATHER DELAYS PLANE

Prince George, B.C., April 17—Captain Parker D. Cramer and W. S. Gamble, United States airmen flying from Chicago to Alaska, who were expected here last evening on the Edmonton-Prince George leg of their flight, had not arrived here this morning. No alarm was felt here as it was considered unlikely they would come through the heavy fog, rain and snowfall which were the prevailing weather conditions.

SEARCH FOR TWO FLIERS EXTENDED

While Airmen Hunted in Australia Kingsford-Smith Controversy Increases

Sydney, Aus., April 17—Anxiety is growing as to the fate of Lieut. Keith Anderson and Robert Hitchcock, last seen over Alice Springs, Central Australia, ten days ago while flying in the aeroplane Kookaburra to join in the search for the Southern Cross fliers, then missing.

Three additional planes, one of which is equipped with wireless, have gone to Alice Springs to aid the search which two planes carried out in that region for several hours without result.

In the meantime, as Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three companions are still on the Glenelg River mud flat in Northwestern Australia, awaiting supplies of gasoline, a hot controversy has arisen over the interrupted flight. Some of the newspapers have criticized the conduct of the flight and The Sydney Guardian has suggested a royal commission should be appointed to inquire into the entire circumstances of what it calls the "Southern Cross Fiasco."

SUITS FILED

London, April 17—A message from Melbourne to the Exchange Telegraph yesterday stated that as a result of comments on the disappearance of the aeroplane Southern Cross, Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and C. T. Ulm had issued writs for alleged libel against The Sydney Daily Guardian. Each aviator claims £10,000 damages.

MOTORING BAD ON MALAHAT DRIVE

In a statement issued to-day the Automobile Club advises motorists who intend to proceed up-island, to use the Mill Bay ferry during the period of reconstruction on the Goldstream Hill. A large gravel fill is being made at Goldstream Hill and, in addition to the possibility of having difficulty in passing over it, the prevalence of motor traffic delays the operations. It would appear that it will be at least a week before this piece of road is fit for travel.

VANCOUVER POLICE ESTIMATES REDUCED

Vancouver, April 17—The Vancouver police commission has reduced the police department's estimates by $51,000. Mayor Malkin to-day stated the requested increase of the force by twenty-five men had been cut to an increase of five men. The plan to build a new police patrol boat was ordered shelved. The department will get along with the present patrol boat. It was decided also to reduce the contingency fund for unforeseen expenditures by $10,000.

Sir Clifford Sifton Dies In New York

New York, April 17.—Death came suddenly at 10 this forenoon to Sir Clifford Sifton, long prominent in Canadian political and business affairs, while he was in New York to consult a specialist on heart trouble, a disease from which he had been suffering.

Accompanied by members of his family, Sir Clifford, who was sixty-eight, arrived in New York this week from his Winter home in Florida. He had an appointment with a heart specialist at the Roosevelt Hospital this morning and soon after his arrival there he grew suddenly weak and expired in a few minutes. His youngest son, Harry Sifton, of Toronto, was with him when he died. Heart failure was given as the cause of death.

Sir Clifford in recent years had made his home in Toronto and there the funeral will be held and interment will be made. The funeral arrangements are not yet completed.

Major J. W. Sifton, of Winnipeg, a son of the late Sir Clifford, told the Canadian Press this afternoon the family would leave for Toronto with the body as soon as possible, but a definite time for the departure had not yet been fixed.

SONS SURVIVE HIM

In addition to Major J. W. and Harry, the surviving sons are Clifford, barrister, Toronto, and W. Victor of The Regina Leader and Post, Regina. Another son, Winfield, died last June.

Lady Sifton, formerly Elizabeth Arma Burrows, whom Sir Clifford married in 1884, died in February, 1926.

MAY 24 PLANS AIM AT GALA JOY FESTIVAL

Victoria to Be Host to Large Numbers of Out-of-town Visitors

"The Best Dressed and Most Lively Parade in Years" Is the Aim of Committees

Concerted plans to make the street parade on May 24 "The best dressed and most lively in years" are being prepared under the auspices of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and many assisting bodies.

At a meeting of the parade committee last night, tentative plans were made which forecast an ambitious and attractive parade, in which every organization and every citizen will have an opportunity of taking an active part. Victoria on that day will be host to hundreds of visitors from the United States and Canadian points.

PARADE OF NATIONS

The plans include the promotion of an international section of the parade, in which residents from all nations would take part in a display characteristic of their nationality.

The committee this year is stressing private participation, recalling the excellent showings of decorated private cars in former years. Victoria, as the Garden City of the West, has produced wonderful floral floats in the past, and it is the aim of the committee to seek a revival of this section of the parade in force this year.

Service Clubs, fraternal and social organizations are being looked to to produce what is always one of the most attractive sections of the parade—of floats. This year special arrangements are made to have women's organizations take a greater part in the parade.

MOUNTED SECTION

Another custom of former years which was always popular and which will, it is anticipated, be well represented, is the mounted section, in which groups and individuals in costume will be asked to ride in the parade.

From the commercial organizations the city and environs, the committee is expecting an active and leading display, and special attention will also be paid to civic, municipal and floats from rural districts, realizing that they advertise the progress made by the various communities.

The cycle and pedestrian portions of the parade will be featured this year, with entries asked from motor cycle enthusiasts, and a large juvenile section on decorated bicycles. Provision for

Sawed-off Shotguns and Revolvers Used in Payroll Robbery in New York

Five Bandits Escape in Auto After Daring Daylight Crime

New York, April 17 — Shooting down a policeman and a bank guard with sawed-off shotguns and large calibre revolvers, five robbers escaped to-day with a payroll of $38,392 being transported in a taxicab to the Bell Telephone Laboratories in Bethune Street on the lower west side of this city.

The money was being taken the few blocks from the Chatham Phoenix branch bank at 14th Street and 8th Avenue to the laboratories under guard of Patrolman Joseph Clancy and John McKane and Eugene Corley, guards employed by the bank.

When the taxicab had almost reached its destination an automobile crowded it to the curb and the robbers opened fire, which was returned by Clancy and McKane. The patrolman was shot twice in the head and Corley once through the leg.

DISAPPEARED IN TRAFFIC

One robber seized the tin box containing the money and waved it at his companions and they all jumped into their car and sped away to West Street, disappearing in river front traffic.

Both windows of the taxi were cut away by the gunfire as though sliced out with a knife and a dozen holes perforated the roof and sides. Witnesses reported a machine gun had been used, but Police Commissioner Grover Whalen said he believed shotguns and revolvers were the only weapons.

Three-year-old Child Not Seen By Car Operator

Joyce Taylor, Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Taylor, 202 Montreal Street, Instantly Killed When Street Car Passes Over Her at Intersection of Ontario and St. Lawrence Streets; Inquest to be Held.

Crushed beneath the grinding wheels of a street car, three-year-old Joyce Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Taylor, 202 Montreal Street, was instantly killed at 12.50 p.m. to-day at the corner of St. Lawrence and Ontario Streets.

Thomas Torrance, 1014 Pendergast Street, the operator of the street car, had no intimation of the accident until he felt the obstruction under the car, the police were told.

Although there were a few persons at the scene, it is believed that no one actually saw the tragedy occur.

An inquest will be held Friday morning at the Curry and Son Funeral Parlors where the remains were taken.

NEW GERMAN REPARATION PLAN STATED

Berlin Delegates Say Allies' Demand 1,000,000,000 Marks a Year Too High

Paris, April 17.—Germany's counter-plan for paying her World War reparations, presented to the Allied experts of the second Dawes Committee by Dr. Schacht, chief of the German delegation, here this afternoon, is understood to offer about 1,000,000,000 marks less a year than the creditors demanded.

Payment would continue thirty-seven years instead of the fifty-eight years proposed by the Allies in their memorandum. The German offer envisages annuities beginning at 1,100,000,000 marks and rising to 1,450,000,000 marks.

Wreckage Strews U.S. East Coast After Great Storm

New York, April 17—The Atlantic coast from Maine to Virginia was strewn with wreckage to-day piled up under the battering of a northeast storm. While wind and wave sank small craft, demoralized shipping and damaged shore structures along the coast, the storm swept inland, carrying rain and snow as far as Western New York and Pennsylvania.

In New York harbor a tug and two barges were sunk. The crew of eighteen was rescued from the tug just before it went down off Staten Island. One of the barges lost carried a $250,000 cargo of whale oil pumped out of the whaler Sir James Clark Ross, which recently arrived from the Antarctic.

Six liners were held outside the harbor waiting for the weather to moderate before proceeding to their piers.

The tide in the harbor rose to within a foot of the top of the Battery wall and was close to the record, being four feet above normal.

LOSSES SUFFERED

Brooklyn and other communities on Long Island suffered severely. At Bell Harbor, in the Rockaway district, a three-story frame building collapsed, when the tide brought the high waves within reach of it.

Trees blown down endangered the lives of pedestrians in several sections of Brooklyn during the height of the storm.

The wind reached a velocity of fifty miles an hour along the Maine coast. A five-masted schooner in Casco Bay was torn from her mooringes and thrown on the rocks.

"An American doctor," says The Manchester Guardian, "has discovered that the modern divorce epidemic is due to the fact that we are not getting enough lime juice. This deprivation causes amiable men to become harsh and overbearing, and fair women to grow nervous and irritable."

Crews on long ocean voages partake regularly of lime juice, and apparently this would be an equally good custom for voyagers on the sea of matrimony.

POWERFUL DRAMA OF VICTOR HUGO ON LAVISH SCALE

"The Man Who Laughs," Universal's super-sound picture of the immortal Victor Hugo novel, which is now at the Dominion Theatre is one of the most powerful dramas ever executed as well as the most lavish unparalleled depiction of Eighteenth Century atmosphere ever presented on the screen.

Mary Philbin and Conrad Veidt are co-starred, while the supporting cast includes Olga Baclanova, Josephine Crowell, Brandon Hurst, George Siegmann, Cesare Gravina and Stuart Holmes.

Paul Leni directed the film which was under the production supervision of Paul Kohner.

PREFERRED WILD WEST TO STAGE BUT FILMS LURED

Gayne Whiteman who plays the Broadway "angel" in the Tiffany production, "Backstage," now showing at the Playhouse Theatre, has had a varied career. He started in with Robert Mantell in Shakespearean repertoire and then went into stock. Finding the legitimate stage a bit humdrum he joined a Wild West Show and traveled with these outfits for many years until he landed in Los Angeles. There he became fascinated with the motion pictures and started in with the Thomas Ince Company as a character actor. To still keep in the element of the great outdoors, Whitman spends most of his leisure hours in riding one of his spirited horses in the mountainous country adjacent to Hollywood.

FORMER POLICE OFFICER AIDED MAKING OF FILM

If the official atmosphere in "Danger Street" is not correct, it will not be because Director Ralph Ince lacked expert advice. For during the filming of this FBO production, which is now showing at the Columbia Theatre, Ince's assistant, T. C. Atkins, revealed that he was at one time an officer on the New York police force. Inasmuch as the locale of "Danger Street" is New York, Atkins proved to be a particularly valuable member of the production staff.

DENNY PORTRAYED IN CYCLONIC ROLE IN "CLEAR DECKS"

Reginald Denny again appears in the cyclonic, swashbuckling type of role, through the portrayal of which he has won his thousands of admirers, in his latest Universal starring picture, "Clear the Decks," now showing at the Capitol Theatre. It is a gay, nautical comedy and was directed by Joseph Henabery. Olive Hasbrouck, Lucien Littlefield, Colette Merton, Otis Harlan and Brooks Benedict have prominent parts in the picture.

FORREST TAYLOR IN DUAL ROLE ON COLISEUM STAGE

The Coliseum Players, under the direction of Raymond "Toby" Leitch are presenting at the Coliseum Theatre this week a stage vehicle entitled "Putting It Over."

Forrest Taylor has a difficult double role and gives a fine performance. In the first part of the play he is cast as the unreliable engineer for a great dam being built in the central United States. He is a dope fiend and a crook and uses weak cement in the construction of the dam. He decides to leave town and no more is heard of him. Mr. Taylor then returns as a brilliant engineer and steps right in where his predecessor left off. He completes the plans and ascertains that if the dam is opened in its present state it will surely mean death and destruction for thousands of people. So he does his best and just in the nick of time convinces officials that the dam is unsafe. Throughout the play Mr. Taylor is on the stage most of the time, and as the dope-crazed engineer shows his talent as an actor.

On the screen this week Jack Holt is appearing in a Zane Grey story entitled "Avalanche."

FAMOUS SONGS IN OPERETTA

Sigmund Romberg Contributes Many Musical Gems in "The Desert Song"

The announcement that "The Desert Song" will be presented in this city at the Royal Victoria on Monday, April 22, carries with it the interesting information that this sensational operetta played more than a year in California. Lillian Albertson is the producer.

It is said that in "The Desert Song" Sigmund Romberg, whose delightful "Student Prince" and "Blossom Time" scores are cherished by music lovers everywhere, has contributed several numbers which are really the best work of his entire career. From the very first scene in the rocky fastness of the "Red Shadow" with the Riff warriors singing their stirring riding song, "Ho!" until the final number, the music is enchanting.

There is not space to list all the songs which have become famous as the popularity of "The Desert Song" spread around the world. The unforgettable baritone solo "One Alone," perfectly rendered by Perry Askam, seems to be a prime favorite with all playgoers. Closely crowding it in general favor are the beautiful numbers "Romance" and "The Sabre Song," which fall to the lot of the talented eighteen-year-old Italian prima donna, Tanzi. "The Desert Song" is another haunting melody. Then "One Flower in Your Garden" as sung by the tenor, David Reese, is another favorite.

There is a well-defined plot in this romantic operetta, which has to do with the exploits of a mysterious "Red Shadow," who is the leader of a band of Riffian warriors. Adventure, love and thrills galore are plentifully besprinkled throughout the georgeous scenes.

COYNE COMPANY TO APPEAR HERE PRIOR TO ORIENTAL TOUR

The Playhouse Theatre management have made a strong bid for public support in making a contract with Fred Coyne to bring his English musical comedy company here for a farewell appearance during the week commencing April 22.

Two of the Coyne revues which have not yet been staged in Canada will be presented on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. "Blue Birds" will be the offering, while the latter part of the week will be devoted to "On the Road." Each of these shows is of the quick-fire variety, which has made the Coyne company's name known over half the world. This will be the last opportunity that Victoria playgoers will have of seeing this very clever band of players, as they leave next week by the N.Y.K. Shidzuoka Maru to fulfill engagements in the Orient.

Prince Nikita, who has been receiving sixty dollars a month as a bank clerk in Paris, has been designated heir to the fallen throne of the Romanoffs. The prince hasn't quit at the bank, yet though.

B. C. COPPER INDUSTRY PROFITS BIG

Galloway Tells Prospectors 1.36 Per Cent Ore Here Profitable, Even at Low Prices

40,000,000 Tons of Ore in Sight; Ten Years' Supply, Without Counting Prospects

The copper industry of British Columbia has had a production of $235,000,000 since it got under way about thirty years ago, and of this total approximately $25,000,000, or 10.6 per cent, has been credited to dividends, John D. Galloway, provincial mineralogist, told members of the Vancouver Island Prospectors' Association at their meeting at Amphion Hall last night under President George E. Winkler.

Mr. Galloway explained that this dividend record worked out at about fifteen per cent of the net value of the copper produced in the province up until the end of 1928.

"That is a satisfactory showing, I think, and I don't think there are many other industries that can equal it," he said.

He pointed out that the three chief copper producers were the Hidden Creek property of the Granby at Anyox, the Britannia and the Copper Mountain at Allenby. He estimated that these properties can work 1½ per cent copper ore and make money with copper metal selling at 12½ cents a pound. He estimated the cost of producing copper as 8.78 cents a pound at Anyox, 12.154 cents a pound at Allenby, with the Britannia costs about the same as those at Anyox.

The copper industry in British Columbia dates back to a definite beginning in 1894 with a production that year of 360,000 pounds worth $16,000, Mr. Galloway said. From that time it has grown until last year 98,000,000 pounds of copper were produced in British Columbia with a value of $14,250,000, and this production was greater than that of any war year. From the beginning of the industry a total production of one and one-half billion pounds of copper has been achieved in this Province, with this Province producing one-half to two-thirds of the total production of Canada, although the east is now catching up.

1.36 PER CENT ORE PROFITABLE

Mr. Galloway recalled that the Hidden Creek mine of the Granby at Anyox was brought into production in 1914 and up to date has produced 13,500,000 tons of ore. Although there have been several plants constructed in the Province and in operation at times, the one at Anyox is the only one in operation to-day producing blister copper.

The average copper content of the ore treated by the three chief copper producers in British Columbia to-day is 1.36 per cent, he said. Sixty-five per cent of the production is exported as high concentrates and the remainder being produced as blister copper.

40,000,000 TONS IN SIGHT

Dealing with the copper ore reserves of B.C., Mr. Galloway placed the definitely proven and reasonably indicated ore at 40,000,000 tons, with an average of 1½ per cent, or 1,200,000,000 pounds of copper, which would give a net recovery of one billion pounds of copper over the next ten years with production continuing at the present rate.

"But these figures do not include possible ore," Mr. Galloway went on. "It seems likely that the figures of possible ore will greatly exceed our present known ore. Some properties now under development will probably come into production in the next few years and more ore may be found in old properties. So I am quite confident that at the end of ten years our output will be just as large or larger than it is at present."

TEXADA TO COME BACK

Dealing with copper prospects, Mr. Galloway referred to Copper Mountain as one of the most promising in the Province, as it is a young mine and destined to be an important factor in production in coming years. He said he did not expect any more important copper discoveries in the Rossland camp. In the Phoenix camp, he said, it was proven that the ore bodies do not go to any great depth, so a great tonnage cannot be expected from there, although there may be many deposits there as good as the ones worked out. The Deadwood, or Greenwood camp, he placed in the same position as the Phoenix, with the ore deposits in the area quite low grade.

"Texada Island is an old camp, but the possibilities there have not been fully exploited and the probabilities are that Texada will come back as a copper area in the near future," Mr. Galloway went on.

BIG DEPOSITS NEAR VICTORIA

"In the southern part of Vancouver Island, we may confidently look forward to production. In addition to the old properties there are the Sunloch, now owned by the Consolidated and the Gabbro, recently taken up by the British Metal Corporation interests, who are carrying on active exploration there. It would seem that this is an important area of copper mineralization, with evidence to show that this will probably be one of our important ore reserves of the future.

There is copper ore all over Vancouver Island but in the centre is an important deposit, the Old Sport of the Coast Copper, which has been under development by the Consolidated for ten or twelve years. Indications are that there is sufficient ore there to develop the property and bring it to a production of 500 to 1,000 tons a day. An important discovery was also made last year at Nimpkish Lake.

TAKES TIME TO MAKE MINE

"On the Southern Mainland Coast, there are a number of important copper prospects.

"But it is well to remember that you can't make a copper mine in six months or a year. History of all copper mines in the world shows that it takes from three to ten years to develop and bring to production a real copper mine.

"The Portland Canal area so far has been known chiefly as a silver producer. The best-known copper property there is the George Copper, now under development by the Consolidated. This property has some important showings and is undoubtedly one of our promising prospects for the future.

"There are a number of important ones in the Hazelton area, including the Rocher de Boulder, which produced a large tonnage in the war years. In the Kamloops area there is considerable low grade mineralization.

"The principal possibilities of further copper discoveries in B.C. are in the old deposits and in the Coastal region of the Province and the Kamloops district."

TONNAGE FOR COAST SMELTER

Dealing with the feasibility of a Coast copper smelter, Mr. Galloway said that the present tonnage or blister copper and concentrates was sufficient to support such a matter, if all the producing interests could be got together and contract to ship to the one smelter. He estimated that the exports now amount to 160,000 tons of concentrates and 100,000 tons of copper ore a year, or over 700 tons a day, with a gross monetary value of $15,000,000. He pointed out, however, that Granby has its own plant at Anyox and that Britannia finds it more profitable to ship to Tacoma than to put up a small plant to handle its production, and the same with Copper Mountain. The Dominion bounty of one-half cent a pound on refined copper, he declared, should be of some assistance towards the establishment of a Coast smelter, but this bounty would expire in 1930.

"If the Consolidated could make a working agreement with one of the other large producers, it would probably put the Consolidated in a position to put up a smelter on the Coast," Mr. Galloway went on. "The natural site for the treatment of our copper ores is at the Coast, rather than in the Interior. The Trail plant is at a disadvantage."

PRICE TO STAY STRONG

Dealing with the price trend of copper metal, Mr. Galloway said: "There is no question that at the present time copper metal is in a very strong statistical position in the world's markets. Copper during the next three or four years will maintained a higher price than it has during the last three or four years. A level of around 18 cents a pound is fairly safe to predict. This condition is due to a steadily increasing demand for copper metal throughout the world.

"We have been mining copper in B.C. for the last thirty years, using one to two per cent copper ore and making a profit, regardless of low prices of the metal. So I think we can count that our copper producers will continue to mine profitably.

"I have sufficient confidence in the mineral resources of the Province to say that at the end of eight or ten years our copper mining industry will be as good or better than it is to-day."

C. P. Hill spoke on the advantages of radiore prospecting for revealing new ore bodies. F. C. Green and Thomas Golby moved and seconded the vote of thanks.

Johnny—"Mamma, I wish I had a little sister."

Mamma—"Why do you think that?"

Johnny—"'Cause I'm tired of teasing the cat."

Rocky Point

Rocky Point, April 17.—The regular meeting of the Rocky Point and East Sooke Farmer's Institute was held in Rocky Point School on Monday evening with George Ball in the chair. Lady Emily Walker, secretary to the F.I., read the minutes and correspondence. Tentative plans were made for the annual picnic, which will probably be held at the Observatory. The speaker of the evening was Miss H. G. Kelly, R.N., who gave an address on "Diet and Health." At the close of her very able address Miss Kelly was accorded a very hearty vote of thanks, and a short discussion of health problems followed, after which refreshments were served by the ladies.

Gerald had bought a two-seater and was taking his girl for a spin.

"O, Gerald, isn't it l-o-ovely?" said the girl as they topped a hill and saw the country spread out far below them.

But she got no answer, for they were already dashing downwards like the stick of a rocket. Gerald, with moist forehead and bulging eyes, shouted in her ear: "The brakes have given way!"

"O, Gerald, how awful!" shrieked the girl. "Can't you stop it? I'd give all the money in the world to get out!"

"Don't part with a penny!" gasped Gerald, who was of Scottish descent. "We'll both get out for nothing when the car hits that gate down there!"

British Coffee Firms Make Tax Protest

London, April 17.—The little tea party which Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, arranged for Great Britain in his budget speech announcing the removal of the historic tax on tea seems to be headed for stormy waters.

The coffee trade does not like it.

Representatives of the coffee trade in London have sent a protest to Mr. Churchill against the budget's disturbance of an equitable proportion of taxation on coffee and tea. Expressing regret that while the tea duty was abolished, that on coffee, cocoa and chicory was left untouched, the protest calls attention to "the enunciation by a former Chancellor" that the duties on these products should remain equal and that this principle has been observed since 1924.

Sir William Smart Dies at Capetown

Capetown, S.A., April 17.—Right Hon. Sir Thomas William Smart, K.C.M.G., former leader of the Unionist Party of South Africa, died here to-day.

Born in Ireland, he was trained for the medical profession. For a period he was Commissioner of Public Works of Cape Colony. From 1921 till 1924 he was Secretary of Agriculture of the Union of South Africa.

RUSSIAN ARMS PLAN OPPOSED AT CONFERENCE

Germany urged a study of the proposals as aiming at the same object as the commission's draft convention on disarmement, even if they proceeded by different methods. The speech of R. Massigli, French delegate, challenged the practicability of the Russian scheme.

France, said M. Massigli, had given close study to the sweeping proposals and would have been willing to accept the change in methods if they had offered a practical basis for disarmament.

"They present us," he added, "with magic formula which would remove all obstacles from our path and permit us to proceed with the task of disarmament, but after examining the proposals we don't share that conviction."

He observed the Soviet proposal for automatic reductions of fifty per cent in the military effectives of a country that had more than 200,000 such did not apply to police forces organized on military lines, forest patrols and other forces engaged in protection of public property. They were to be subject to a special convention.

This provision might have a far-reaching effect in countries where property was nationalized, he pointed out.

FIGURES COMPARED

Count Massigli compared two states, one with a military force of 200,000 men and the other with 180,000. Under the Soviet proposal the first would have its effectives reduced by half, or to 100,000. The second would be reduced by one-third, or end up with 20,000 more men than the first. Again, the proposal made no distinction between a country with open frontiers and a country with natural frontier defences.

M. N. Sato, Japanese delegate, thought the fixing of effectives and war materials should be reserved for the main conference. He appealed to M. Litvinoff, Soviet delegate, not to insist upon fixing the figures of armaments, believing this would hasten an accord. He opposed reductions to minimums as too mathematical.

Count von Bernstorff, German delegate, approved the fundamental ideas of the plan, but agreed with the Japanese that the question of figures should be left to the later international conference. He urged closer examination of the Soviet principles, because they pointed the way to genuine reductions.

J. Valdes-Mendeville of Chile opposed referring the plan to the technical committee and expressed the belief the commission should follow its own draft treaty.

The debate was adjourned until the afternoon.

Discussion of the programme of the conference was halted yesterday on motion of Dr. W. A. Riddell, Canadian delegate, that the agenda proposed by President Loudon should be adopted. The commission therefore to-day tackled the Soviet disarmament scheme.

FOUR GROUPS OF NATIONS

This proposed convention on disarmament, submitted by Russia, a year ago when its proposal for complete and immediate disarmament was rejected, would divide the nations into four groups, namely, nations with armed land forces of more than 200,000 men, or naval forces of more than 200,000 tons, or air arms of more or less than 200 aeroplanes. The first group would be required to reduce its armaments by fifty per cent and the others would be required to reduce proportionately.

Indications are the Soviet scheme has scarcely any better chance of success than the previous proposal.

Following discussion of the Soviet proposal the commission will consider the German scheme of giving greater publicity to the manufacture of arms.

SOVIET PROPOSALS

Geneva, April 17.—Soviet disarmament proposals explained to-day to the Preparatory Commission on Disarmament of the League of Nations were as follows:

First—Reduction instead of limitation of armaments.

Second—Extensive reduction of the armaments of the larger countries, but lesser reductions for the smaller nations.

Third—Destruction of offensive armaments, while purely defensive armaments would be left untouched.

Fourth—Consolidation of peaceful positions of the nations.

General Alexander Langovev, Russian military expert, pleaded for a maximum of 10,000 tons displacement for warships instead of 35,000 tons, as fixed by the Washington Conference.

Besides limiting the size of all warships to a maximum of 10,000 tons, the scheme called for the abolishment of all aircraft carriers and for the disarmament of all military dirigibles and aircraft.

Nations possessing a navy with a total strength of 200,000 tons would, under the Soviet plan, reduce their naval forces by one-half and those with less than 50,000 tons by one-fourth.

Halifax, April 17.—"Are you in favor of continuing the Nova Scotia Temperance Act?" That will be the question submitted to the Nova Scotia electors at a referendum. A special committee appointed by the House of Assembly drafted the question in view of the proposal that a vote should be taken on the desirability of establishing a system of government control of sale of liquor.

NAVY COSTS ARE SPEAKER'S TOPIC

Toronto, April 17.—"Are the people of Canada so lost to all proportions of their dignity that they will continue to allow the British taxpayers to pay for the entire cost of the navy?" demanded Sir Alfred Morine, former Minister and for a time Acting Premier of Newfoundland, before a service club here yesterday.

"The cost and control of the navy is entirely borne and exercised by Great Britain and yet it clearly and almost solely exists for the protection and advantage of the Empire at large. Canada has, or had, the rudiments of a Canadian navy and, in small degree, such a navy might be of advantage to the Empire at large, said Sir Alfred. He remarked, however, that such a Canadian navy could be of no benefit in time of war, owing to its size.

Advocating the institution of an Empire parliament to discuss imperial matters in an imperial spirit, Sir Alfred said: "Each part of the Empire is thinking chiefly of its own domestic interests and only remotely of empire."

SIR CLIFFORD SIFTON DIED TO-DAY AT NEW YORK

Winnipeg, April 17—From scores of Manitobans who remember the newspaper days of Sir Clifford Sifton in this province came tributes to-day to the memory of the Ontarioan, who came to be a power on the prairies.

Though the late Sir Clifford was known to have been markedly ill during the last few months, few of his friends here realized the gravity of his malady.

"The news of the sudden death of Sir Clifford Sifton comes as such a severe blow to me that I am unable to express adequately my feelings at the present moment," said Lieut.-Governor J. D. McGregor to-day. "Others may refer to his career as a lawyer, as a legislator, and Cabinet Minister, both Provincial and Federal, as an arbitrator and as one of Canada's foremost businessmen. I speak of him as a man whose friendship was a privilege and whose passing has very greatly added to the devastation recently caused by death in the ranks of our most honored citizens."

RAILWAY PROBLEM

On January 30, 1929, Sir Clifford Sifton's name last came before the public appended to an open statement. On that date from his Winter home in Florida he made public an open letter requesting that the branch line problem of the two Canadian railways, in the northern prairie region, then a moot question, be settled by co-operation between the two organizations.

The last occasion when Sir Clifford visited Winnipeg was August, when he remained here for some ten days renewing acquaintances with his friends of Manitoba's formative days.

Fifty-five years ago, when Winnipeg was but a straggling settlement of 4,000 people on the border of an advancing West, Clifford Sifton first came to Manitoba. Then he was but a fourteen-year-old lad fresh from the eastern atmosphere of Middlesex County, Ontario, where he had been born.

CAREER AT LAW

As a youngster he studied law in the office of Hon. S. C. Biggs and in 1882, when he was but twenty-one years old, he was admitted to the bar. A year later he went to Brandon, the city which was to be so intimately connected with his later career. After being city solicitor, the ambitious young easterner entered political life.

Hon Sir Clifford Sifton, K.C.M.G., K.C., LL.D., of Toronto, former Federal Minister of the Interior, barrister and statesman, was for many years one of the most prominent public men of Canada. Of surpassing business ability and possessing exceptional courage and independence of character, he towered above the average politician of his time at Ottawa. Few men were better known in Canada than Sir Clifford. During his years of political activity he was regarded as one of the leaders of the Liberal Party and one of its best fighters.

IMMIGRATION WORK

Sir Clifford was called by Sir Wilfred Laurier to the Federal Cabinet on November 17, 1896, as Minister of the Interior and Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs. As Minister of the Interior he carried out a vigorous immigration policy, which added largely to the population of the Dominion. In the earlier period of his ministry he was specially charged with matters relating to the government of the Northwest Territories (now Saskatchewan and Alberta) and the Yukon Territory and all unorganized and outlying territories of the Dominion. He introduced and carried through legislation at Ottawa giving responsible government to the Northwest Territories in 1898.

On account of a difference of opinion with the Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, over educational clauses of the North-West Territories Autonomy Bill, Sir Clifford resigned from the Government in February, 1905. He continued to be a member of the House of Commons until the general election of 1911, when he withdrew and did not present himself for re-election. He represented Brandon, Manitoba, in the Dominion Parliament from 1896 till 1911, his first election to the House of Commons being by acclamation, following upon his call to the Ministry at Ottawa.

Sir Clifford withdrew his support from the Laurier Government in 1911 when the Taft-Fielding reciprocity agreement was the paramount question in Dominion politics, he not being in accord on the matter with his leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He took active part in the campaign in the general election of that year against the proposed reciprocity agreement with the United States.

IN MANITOBA FIELD

Sir Clifford was an outstanding political figure in Manitoba for a number of years before he joined the Laurier Government. His political career in Manitoba began in 1888. In that year he was elected to the Manitoba Legislature as Liberal member for North Brandon. He continued to represent Brandon in the local Legislature until he accepted the invitation to the larger sphere of usefulness at Ottawa.

Succeeding Hon. Joseph Martin as Attorney-General of Manitoba in 1891, Sir Clifford was Attorney-General and Minister of Education in the Greenway Government until 1896, when he resigned to become Federal Minister of the Interior. While a member of the Manitoba Government he introduced the act abolishing divisions between law and equity procedure in the Courts of King's Bench and codifying and simplifying civil procedure in the courts.

MANITOBA SCHOOLS

Sir Clifford had charge, on behalf of the province of Manitoba, of the constitutional litigation relating to the Manitoba School Law and negotiations with the Tupper Government at Ottawa arising out of the question. With Hon. J. D. Cameron, Provincial Secretary of Manitoba at the time, he met commissioners of the Federal Government in March, 1895, and debated the settlement of this question. A few months later there was a change of Government at Ottawa, and Sir Clifford joined the new administration, that of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

On the recommendation of the Canadian Government Sir Clifford was appointed by the British Government to act as British agent before the Alaska boundary tribunal under the treaty of January, 1903. He spent several months in London in 1903 superintending the preparation and presentation of the British case.

He was one of the Dominion's commissioners at the International Conference on the Conservation of Natural Resources, held at Washington, D.C., in 1908.

For some time Sir Clifford was chairman of the Canadian Conservation Commission, he having been appointed to that position in 1909. He lectured in many places throughout the country on "The Conservation of Our National Resources." In 1909 he was elected chairman of the committee on forests and waterways in the House of Commons.

Sir Clifford was the author of a book, "Atlas of Western Canada."

ATTENDED CORONATION

He attended the Imperial conference in London in 1907. He and Lady Sifton were present by invitation at the coronation of King George and Queen Mary in 1911, and they were presented to the King and Queen in St. James's Palace the same year.

Apart from his political career Sir Clifford Sifton was widely known in Canada and the United States, being for many years one of the leading horsemen at the principal races and horse shows in the big Canadian and United States cities. He was an importer of English hunters. He was a great lover of high-bred, high-spirited horses, and probably the numerous trophies which he won in horse competitions gave him more genuine pleasure than the honors that came his way in the political arena. He was elected president of the Ottawa Racing Association in 1903, and in 1909 was head of the National Bureau of Breeding.

Sir Clifford was president of the Atlantic Oil Company, and managing director of the Imperial Pulp Company, Winnipeg.

He was created a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George on January 1, 1915.

Of Irish descent, Sir Clifford Sifton, son of John W. Sifton, at one time Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of Manitoba, was born in the County of Middlesex, Ontario, on March 10, 1861. He was educated in the London High School and Victoria University, Toronto. He married Miss Elizabeth Arma Burrows, daughter of H. T. Burrows, formerly of Ottawa, on August 14, 1884. She died in February, 1925.

Sir Clifford resided in Ottawa for some years after becoming a member of the Government, but subsequently became a resident of Toronto. He was a member of the Methodist Church, and was a member of the following clubs: Manitoba, Winnipeg; Rideau, Ottawa; Hunt, Toronto, and York, Toronto.

IN NEWSPAPER FIELD

Sir Clifford was a man of great wealth with wide and varied financial interests. During his political career in Manitoba he acquired the ownership of The Manitoba Free Press, which wielded a great influence throughout the prairie provinces. More recently, with his sons, he purchased a group of Saskatchewan daily newspapers, The Regina Leader and Post and the Saskatoon Star and Phoenix.

CANADA NEEDS HIGH POWER RADIO CHAIN, DELEGATIONS ASSERT

TOO MUCH ADVERTISING

Mr. Grant vigorously denounced the great increase in advertising recently notable in United States broadcasting, and objected that distorted historical plays were also being presented. He considered Canada should establish a system wherein a minimum of advertising would be allowed, and educational broadcasts, when given, should be carefully planned to avoid giving offence to nationals of other countries.

BEST IN CANADA

The best artists of all the communities of Canada could be attracted to programmes of a national chain, and a spirit of emulation between cities could develop, he said.

Very powerful stations could be built at low cost by the Government. The broadcast apparatus should be located in cheap buildings, situated far away from communities. The operation should be performed by Government officers, but the programmes should be prepared by groups not in Government employ, to attain competition. Mr. Grant said the Radio Club was emphatically opposed to advertising on chain broadcast programmes.

GET THE BEST

"With only six cleared channels allotted to Canada we should have the largest power for which equipment has been devised," declared Mr. Grant, when advocating powers of 50,000 watts for each station.

"What would be the effect if the United States stations adopt the same system?" asked Sir John Aird. Mr. Grant said that nothing now prevents their adoution of such power, the larger stations now being tuned sharply.

WOMEN'S VIEWPOINT

Mrs. H. E. Young said "what we want and what we can afford are not the same thing." She supported creation of a national chain service and warned: "We Canadians are being Americanized so quickly than we are aware." Mrs. Young supported chain broadcast from Ottawa of the doings of the Governor-General, the proceedings of the House of Commons and Senate.

"If we only got 'God Save the King' and 'O, Canada,' is would be worth while," she said.

Sunday afternoon programmes from England could be given by a Canadian chain, and short wave broadcast from Geneva would also be of great worth, said Mrs. Young.

Financing of radio broadcast could be arranged by a tax on power companies, while Canadian insurance companies should greatly increase their business by radio advertising, Mrs. Young considered.

Radio control should not be vested in expensive offices, such as the Railway Commission, Mrs. Young thought.

"I cannot adequately tell you what it means to women and families to have the world brought to us in our kitchens while we are about our household tasks," she concluded.

LEND STATIONS FUNDS

Harold M. Diggon, on behalf of the Canadian public affairs committee of International Kiwanis, presented opinions approved by members resident in all parts of Canada.

Creation of groups of stations, operating under Government subsidy, were favored. The principal Canadian stations should be granted loans for modernization of plant and an operation subsidy awarded well-run stations. The necessary revenues should be obtained from annual license fees of $2.50 for each receiver.

Canada should press for more cleared broadcast channels, and Mr. Diggon considered that, if the United States authorities proved obdurate, means existed to bring them to terms.

He protested that adequate advertising of Canadian-made goods was not practiced, and news broadcasts available were strongly tinged with views favorable to the United States.

"DONE NOBLY"

Commissioner Bowman asked if consideration had been given by the Kiwanis committee to the problem of which stations should get subsidies and the amount of the aid extended. Mr. Diggon said his committee favored the Radio Commission to decide such problems.

"The existing stations have done nobly under difficulties. There is no reason why they should be reduced in number," he said.

Private enterprise should be encouraged to continue construction of new stations and the Government should extend subsidies to well-run stations. "There should be no stifling of individual enterprise," Mr. Diggon considered.

PREFER FEWER STATIONS

Mr. Grant said that the Radio Club opposed additional stations except super-power government-owned broadcasters. We want less rather than more stations," he said.

"You oppose private initiative in favor of government-owned stations," asked Sir John Aird, and Mr. Grant said, "There is room for both."

E. F. Gould favored Provincial Government control of broadcasting. He feared that, in the event of war, the Government would not be able to control radio. He classed radio and moving pictures as avenues for training the opinions of the young in United States ideas, and feared that such a prospect held dangers for Canada.

A GREAT NATION BUILDER

SIR CLIFFORD SIFTON WAS A great nation builder, superb administrator, an able parliamentarian, and a sagacious man of affairs. To his vision, courage and ability Canada owes much of her remarkable progress in the last quarter of a century, and there will be widespread regret over his death, which occurred in New York to-day.

The name of Sifton will be inseparably linked in history with many aspects of Canada's advancement to her present prominence among the nations of the world, but it will be with none more intimately and decisively than with the development of Western Canada, which now plays so vital a part in the economic, social and political life of the country. Not long after he became Minister of the Interior in the first Cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1896, with the support and encouragement of his chief he conceived, organized and set in motion the most ambitious policy of immigration and land settlement ever undertaken by this Dominion.

A young man of the West at that time, he realized that Canada's future depended largely upon the number of thrifty, industrious people that could be induced to make their homes upon the millions of fertile acres between the Great Lakes and the Rocky Mountains. Then, however, most of this vast domain was held under railway reserve. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company had not yet selected the lands which had been given to it as subsidies for the construction of its railroad, and, as it had first choice, nothing could be done in opening the country for settlement until it had chosen its allotment.

Mr. Sifton promptly disposed of this difficulty by compelling the company to select its land, and then proceeded with his unexampled campaign of settling the millions of acres which were available for this purpose. He built up an efficient organization in his department to deal with the problem, and within a few years, as the outcome of his activities, immigration to Canada, which up to that time was a few thousands a year, expanded into tens of thousands, and eventually exceeded 400,000 a year. Millions of acres were brought under cultivation. Small towns grew into thriving cities and hundreds of settlements arose in various parts of the prairie country. All this, in turn, proved an immense stimulus to the manufacturing industry of Canada, thus vastly enlarging the Dominion's wealth and income. Nothing in the records of our country is more striking than the contrast in its industrial condition before 1896 and after Sifton initiated and carried out his epochal western policy. In this may be found one of the most imposing monuments ever left by the builder of a nation.

Beyond all doubt Sir Clifford Sifton was the ablest departmental administrator Canada ever had. He surrounded himself with subordinates of marked ability and loyalty. He wasted no time on irrelevant details. He was forceful, direct and utterly fearless. So great was his confidence in Canada and its future that no problem affecting its welfare was regarded by him as insuperable. Only those who were familiar with the remarkable organization he created for dealing with the land and other resources of the great West, as well as immigration on a large scale, can adequately appraise the genius of this distinguished Canadian.

He was an effective parliamentarian. In the House he made very few speeches, but no member was listened to with greater interest. Although handicapped by deafness, he was a tower of strength to his party in debate, and, as might have been expected, his speeches always were statesmanlike and devoid of pettiness.

He retired from the Laurier Cabinet in 1905, owing to a difference of opinion with his colleagues over the legislation creating the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, although still remaining a member of the House of Commons. He was one of the foremost champions of the conservation of our natural resources, and for some time was chairman of the Canadian Conservation Commission.

In 1911 he broke with his old chieftain, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on the issue of reciprocity with the United States, and incurred the hostility of many Liberals. An interesting sidelight on his character was furnished by the fact that, although he himself opposed reciprocity and campaigned against it, his newspaper, The Manitoba Free Press, was strongly in favor of it. Sir Clifford never attempted to influence the policy adopted by the managers of his newspaper. A smaller man would have done so.

In later years, among the manifold interests of this exceptional man, perhaps the most outstanding has been his robust Canadianism. He believed in Canada and its people. He believed that this country was destined to become one of the leading nations of the world, and in his strong, resolute, far-seeing mind there was no room for the picture of a Canada occupying a position of inferiority to any other country. In his death a truly great Canadian, judged by the record of actual achievement, has gone to his reward.

TEA AND BETS

IT IS DIFFICULT TO JUDGE FROM this distance what effect upon the political situation in Great Britain Mr. Churchill's budget will have. It contains no spectacular proposal such as might have been expected under the circumstances. It probably will be called the teacup and betting budget; but Liberals and Laborites may call it many other names during the election campaign. It will be their political duty to try to prove to the electorate that it is both a vote-catching budget and one that will prove of little value to the public at large.

The most important proposal in the budget is the reduction of eight cents a pound in the duty on tea. To our people this may seem a relatively slender bait to dangle before an electorate nearly ready to go to the polls to elect a new House of Commons. But not so in the Old Country.

Mr. Churchill has not had long to wait, however, for the first reaction to this concession. The coffee trade is up in arms; it wants the Chancellor of the Exchequer to explain why the duty on coffee, cocoa and chicory has been left untouched.

There is little to be said about the betting tax, of course, because Mr. Churchill himself has admitted that it was a fiasco, although it was his own proposal.

The budget speech is noteworthy for its failure to give any promise of practical plans for the relief of unemployment. In view of the somewhat elaborate proposals which both opposition parties already have placed before the public, it might have been supposed that the Government would have countered with detailed schemes of its own.

After all, the campaign largely will be waged upon this question. The remission of eight cents duty on tea, while welcome to the housewife, is hardly likely to be a very potent force in platform oratory. As the campaign progresses, however, we shall be able to obtain a better idea of the part the budget will play.

A LEGACY THAT ENDURES

EVERY MAN WOULD LIKE TO BE able to leave his children a comfortable fortune on his death. There is a great satisfaction in being able to feel that one's family will never be pinched for money.

But there is another kind of legacy a man can leave—a kind that is much rarer, yet infinitely more satisfying.

Into New York the other day there came, on a visit, a bright-eyed, smiling little lady of seventy-seven—who, for all that she is not rich, received from her father one of the finest bequests a woman could wish for.

She is the daughter of Stephen Collins Foster, who wrote such songs as "Swanee River," "My Old Kentucky Home" and the like. And while she has never collected a cent in royalties on these songs, which are sung and played in many parts of the New and Old Worlds, the old songs are working for her, nevertheless. Never does she hear a snatch of one of them that it does not bring her father back to her. She shares in the music that millions love; is almost a part of it.

That is her legacy. It has given her a happy life; and no man can possibly give his children more than that.

It is forever paying dividends. The little lady's visit to New York the other day was occasioned by the fact that she had been invited to be guest of honor at a big party given in the gilded Ritz Hotel by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

"And what do you suppose?" she said excitedly to a reporter afterward. "When I came in they all clapped me and wanted me to make a speech before I got a chance to sit down!"

There are other dividends, too. She strolls down a street—and, likely, from the first house she passes there come the strains of "Swanee River," painstakingly rendered by some unskilled pianist to whom that old folksong is one of the things that make life easier and the world more companionable. And this, every time, brings before her the image of her father—"all he thought of," she explains, "was mother and me—and our happiness."

Things like that are the most precious legacies on earth. Money can do a great deal to smooth out the rough places in life, but memories can do a great deal more. A child whose home was a haven of love and happiness will have echoes of that love and that happiness to draw on, decades later, as long as life lasts. What if misfortune, hard times, poverty, may come later? Bitterness and utter hopelessness are always held at a distance by the remembrance of old days and old ways.

And that, probably, is the great redeeming feature of a world that sometimes seems very heartless and cruel. Things born of kindness and love are immortal. They remain as long as anyone can use them. Their fortunate possessor can draw on them without limit.

Work to leave money to your children, by all means. But remember that there is another kind of legacy that is far more valuable.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Love is only a disease, we understand, like whooping cough or measles, says Professor Pierre Vachet of Paris. The professor might have gone further and told us alimony was the doctor's bill.

A talking moving picture of 300 animals was filmed at the Bronx Zoo the other day. Now the movies can add to their classic advertising line, a "100 per cent. all-talkie all-dumb" picture.

Loose Ends

H. B. W.

IN THE peaceful countryside of southern England the other day, scientific excavators dug down into a mound of earth and found beneath it the bones of several hundred early Britons, strewn about as if their owners had died on the spot. The excavators came to the conclusion that this was the scene of a great massacre, where the women died beside their warrior husbands.

* * *

THE INTERESTING thing about it was the discovery that the arms of every woman had been broken during her life and had knitted together again. That puzzled the investigators for a while, until they finally came to the conclusion that householders in those good old days of frank and generous dealing, hit their wives over the head with clubs whenever occasion demanded and the latter, in attempting to shield themselves, suffered fractures of the forearm every month or so.

* * *

APART FROM providing another proof that we are descended from a conquering race, the discovery is enlightening to us. It shows how our bones leave behind a record which is not set down in our history books. Some day we are going to be dug up. Our modern bones will do the same for excavators of three or four thousand years hence. What kind of a tale will they tell?

* * *

THEY WON'T show the women's arms all broken, but they will record far more gruesome things. If the present vogue for high French heels continues, the female skeleton of the future will show a perpetual forward bend at the knee, which is apparent in every living skeleton walking the streets to-day, or even a permanent curve in that direction. The feet will be reduced to the shape of an arrow head by the fashionable slipper, and toes, of course, will disappear altogether from the same cause. The alarming nobbiness of the feminine knee, which has developed with the short skirt, will have reached incredible proportions; bobbed hair will probably produce a notable flattening of the skull, and if motor travel increases any further, legs may disappear altogether, just as did the human tail when its wearer left the trees. And if our diet of soft foods is not changed, there will be no teeth in these modern skeletons at all.

* * *

WHAT THE excavators of 4,000 years hence will deduce from these discoveries will not be flattering to us. They will undoubtedly conclude, after long study and frenzied controversies in the newspapers, that our present civilization treated its women with a brutality which the simple minds of the early bone-breaking Britons, or the more savage North American Indians, could not conceive. They will prove conclusively that we loaded our women with heavy burdens, which distorted their limbs, and compressed their skulls, that we bound their feet in the ancient Chinese fashion and pulled their teeth so that they would have no weapon of defence. Four thousand years from now this century will be regarded by scientific investigators as the most atrocious in history. These investigators will probably be about right.

* * *

MEANWHILE, THE passion for re-making, altering and renovating the human form divine continues with unabated energy. Having reduced the female figure to certain negligible proportions, which everybody thought was to be maintained permanently and was trying to get accustomed to, the people who decide these things are now trying to build it up again to the generous standards of mid-Victorian times.

* * *

FROM ENGLAND comes word that the beauty chorus of the latest revue now under preparation, is being fed on fattening foods in order to make it look womanly. Smart women of the nation, therefore, are starting to diet to get fat just as enthusiastically as they dieted to get thin, but at a somewhat higher cost. To be exact, a light lunch for the chorus ladies consists of a cup of rich soup, a boiled egg, wholesome bread, butter, honey, cheese and a cup of milk, with perhaps a glass of light lager." And so the angle is taboo, and from now on the curve's the thing.

* * *

THE RESULTS of this campaign of physical expansion are likely to be rather upsetting for a while in those spheres of life where figures count. In place of the tribe of weak, willowy and wasted creatures that infest the screen, we shall soon be reading of bigger and better movies wherein peculiar charm is claimed for the leading lady because she has dieted herself up to 300 pounds.

* * *

THE DELIGHTFUL publicity issued by the movie companies will shortly be telling us of Miss So-and-so, who is featured in soul-stirring drama because she won the beauty contest at Atlantic City, where she broke all the scales and was taken home on a flat car, and that we really ought to see some other winsome violet in romantic parts, for it takes the lifework of 10,000 silk worms to make for her a single stocking. Oh, well, after enduring a generation of stage ladies with good voices for dancing and good limbs for singing, after watching the development of that new genus the human eel, one can get used to anything.

* * *

SOME DAY something stronger even than the laws of fashion is going to take a hand in this business, as one is reminded by a recent discovery in Asia Minor. Scientists have just found in the Euphrates Valley a stratum of mud and other silt, signs of a great flood over the remains of an ancient city—the first absolute evidence of the flood story which occurs in the literature and folklore of all peoples. Evidently there really was a flood in Asia Minor which blotted out a whole civilization, although Wells and other historians had the idea for some time that the rush of the Atlantic through the Gates of Hercules into the Mediterranean, crushing out some of our first ancestors, was the origin of the flood legend.

* * *

WELL, ANYWAY, it is certain now that since the last ice age there has been a commotion on the earth such as is not recorded in written history. In the 5,000 years or so of written record we have had no really serious accidents of that sort, and have grown complacently accustomed to the idea that nothing unpleasant is ever going to happen on a couple of adjacent years. But, as we know, the ice, according to present schedule, will sweep as far south as Chicago again and permanently solve the crime problem there. It is really ridiculous how secure we feel, when it was only yesterday, as time goes, that our forefathers were snuffed out like candles. Some day perhaps Nature will do something really interesting for us.

BROADCASTING

To the Editor:—I have read with interest the letter re "Broadcasting" in Times of Monday from the pen of R. W. Miller.

It is evident that your correspondent shares in the delusion so common on the North American continent, namely, that Great Britain is just beginning to emerge from feudalism, that her people are effete and her institutions obsolete. Mr. Miller bases his opinions on what he claims was his experience with radio reception in England last year. His views appear to be in direct opposition to those of people competent to speak with authority. Perhaps your correspondent's sojourn in the Old Land was not sufficiently protracted to enable him to get rid of the mental vision of the "world's greatest" with which a bombastic Americanism has saturated the Western ether since broadcasting began.

With regard to British programmes. I receive regularly two English radio magazines, one of which contains complete advance programmes. Comparison of these with the average radio programme list on this continent should convince all but the most prejudiced that the British programmes compare more than favorably with those on this side of the Atlantic. The only criticism of British programmes I have seen so far has been from people of the "popular programme" type to whom culture and good music are as a red rag is to a bull.

The other magazine I receive is purely technical. Comparison of the same with the best American radio publications does not give the impression that in the radio field Britain is hopelessly behind the times.

I would suggest to your correspondent that perhaps he harbors the misconception that the efficiency of a receiving set is to be measured by the number of its "tubes," or "valves," which latter is the correct term, American nomenclature notwithstanding.

The efficiency of British and European valves is much higher than that of the American. This is conceded by Americans themselves. Take, for example, the American 201A type valve. This draws a filament current of .25 amperes and has an amplification factor of 8. The British valve of similar type draws only .1 ampere, and has an amplification factor of 15. Moreover, it has longer life. It gives, as it were, "more miles per gallon," and "more power."

"I have encountered only one individual from the Old Land who had little to say in favor of British radio engineering and design—a quack doctor who apparently suffered from a form of megalomania and nursed an imaginary grievance against the British broadcasting authorities.

In radio science, Britain is by no means behind the times. It was a Scotsman, John L. Baird, who gave that young science, television, which is based on radio principles, to the world. Americans are working overtime to prove that "we did it."

Receivers in Great Britain, if they are to cover Europe and their own long-wave station 5XX, Daventry, must be constructed so as to be able to reproduce signals on wave lengths ranging all the way from 180 to 2500 metres, as compared with 200 to 550 metres on this side of the Atlantic. This is a factor which must be considered in passing judgment.

I am of the opinion that, considering the hostile and, in many cases, unsportsmanlike criticism they have been subjected to, the scant encouragement they have received and other important considerations, Canadian broadcasters have done remarkably well. Whatever scheme of reorganization is adopted, it is to be hoped that the same will be recognized. Radio broadcasting costs money and not all Canadian broadcasters are millionaires or gigantic "grand consolidated corporations, incorporated."

I may be dense, but I fail to understand why your correspondent should see in the fact that because in Britain they sell "Petrol and Oil" instead of using the term "Automobile Service Station," the same is a sign of backwardness. A rose by any other name would smell as sweet.

JAS. FYFE WILSON,

BROADCASTING

To the Editor:—I was sorry to learn from Mr. Miller's letter in last night's Times that he thought the broadcasting abroad inferior to what we get here. I have been resident abroad for a year and, on the contrary, I think it is on a much higher scale than it is here.

I had the pleasure of listening in on a large set constructed by a naval engineer and I have heard nothing to equal it here.

Another thing—one doesn't need a large set in England, as a crystal set will bring in all one could wish for. I very much doubt whether the average Briton would care to "put all his eggs in one basket" and purchase a large radio, when he can (for a very modest sum) go and see a first-class show or numerous other amusements he has at his disposal.

I heard lovely programmes from London, Paris, and beautiful music and opera from the gay city of Vienna (the birthplace of many composers), not to mention a very thrilling account of the "Derby," although rather a disappointing finish (for me) as the horse I had backed was last, and a mile behind the others.

Does Mr. Miller derive any pleasure from "Harper's Corner," broadcast from KJR on Sunday evening or four nasal voices lauding the charms of "Sweet Adeline," or "Swannee River," which we invariably get four nights out of five.

Anna Case, of course, is very good. But, then, for every fifteen minutes of music we have, we have to listen to someone praising some make of flour, coffee or car, and then, there is a youth sings over KOMO, between 2 and 3 o'clock, who should really be put out of his misery. No, Mr. Miller, Britain is not behind at all! Only that she doesn't "tell the world."

How about Major Segrave winning the boat and car race? And another car coming up to do 400 miles per hour run by radio. How about it, Mr. Miller?

"FAIRPLAY."

AIR MAIL PLANS OF CANADA CALL FOR EXTENSIONS

Rapid Growth Provided For, Veniot Tells House of Commons

Ottawa, April 17.—The air mail plans of the Government were outlined when the House of Commons, in committee of supply, last night was considering the outside service vote of the Post Office Department. The programme given by Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, is an ambitious one.

Under the subheading of mail services, which includes all air routes, the amount of the vote was given at $16,305,000. Mr. Veniot explained that during the last few months the postal service had extended its mail routes to almost every corner of Canada. During the coming Summer it was hoped to connect Toronto with Buffalo and Windsor.

Any town or city along the route which had provided a landing field for mail planes could benefit from this service. The department did not intend to construct such landing fields itself said the Minister.

SURVEYS ARE MADE

Air mail services to the Pacific Coast ports was not contemplated for the present year, he said. Surveys of mail routes had not yet been completed by the experts of the Department of National Defence. As soon as these surveys were finished, and the feasibility of the far Western link in the transcanada service reported upon, it could be determined when and how the complete service could be given.

RURAL MAIL CARRIERS

At the start of the discussion, when Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, moved that the House go into committee of supply, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Conservative member for South Wellington, Ont., moved an amendment calling for increased remuneration for rural mail carriers.

The House divided on the amendment shortly before 11 p.m. It was defeated by thirty-six votes, those registered against the amendment numbering 106 and for 70.

As soon as the amendment was defeated the House proceeded to consider the Postoffice Department estimates in committee of supply.

COMMISSION PLAN

During the discussion, Mr. Guthrie said he regarded the present system of awarding contracts for the delivery of rural mail by tender was "unfair, burdensome and unsatisfactory." He suggested rural mail carriers be appointed by the Civil Service Commission upon a permanent basis with a definite rate of pay.

C. G. Power, Liberal, Quebec South, saw in the action of the member for South Wellington, a "good political manoeuvre."

GREAT COST

Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, said that if the method of paying rural mail carriers recommended by Mr. Guthrie was carried but, the cost would rise from $2,825,317 to $4,977,905. There were carriers, declared Mr. Veniot, who received $1,000 a year, and others who had a trip of about forty-five miles were paid as much as $5,000 for their services. Ninety per cent of the contractors were farmers who used their own farm rigs for the rural mail work, so they did not have to pay anything for special equipment.

An agitation throughout the country was being carried on by a certain individual who was not even a mail carrier himself, said Mr. Veniot. He did not suggest honorable members opposite had any association with that person, but he would point out he was asking for such increases to be retroactive to 1917. This would cost $87,000,000.

COMMISSIONERS EXPLAIN PLANS

Royal Commission on Radio Broadcasting Issues Statement as to Its Objects

The objectives of the Royal Commission on radio broadcasting, the information being sought in the course of the present tour of Canada, and the activities of the commission in Europe, are summarized by the commission in the following official statement, issued last night:

"This Commission on Radio Broadcasting has been appointed by the Dominion Government to inquire into the existing situation in Canada, and to examine the different methods adopted in other countries, an official statement issued last evening says.

"The purpose of the inquiry is to determine how radio broadcasting in Canada can be most effectively carried on in the interests of Canadian listeners, and in the national interests of Canada.

"According to the terms of reference of the order-in-council appointing the commission, it is considered that the desired end might be achieved in several ways, provided funds are available, viz.:

(a) the establishment of one or more groups of stations operated by private enterprise in receipt of a subsidy from the Government;
(b) the establishment and operation of stations by a Government-owned and financed company;
(c) the establishment and operation of stations by provincial governments.

ALL VIEWS WELCOMED

"The commission will be glad to give its best consideration to any views on the subject of this inquiry. It should be noted, however, that the question of the division of wave lengths between Canada and the United States is not within the scope of this inquiry.

"The commission has visited Great Britain, France, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Ireland and the United States. It has gathered the necessary information about the methods in force in these countries and elsewhere. It has found broadcasting exceptionally well organized in Great Britain and Germany. In France, the situation is now being studied by a commission. Everywhere indeed, the commission found inquiries being conducted under government auspices for the purpose of organizing a nation-wide basis in the public interest.

"The commission went abroad for the purpose of learning. Similarly the commission is here to confer with the provincial authorities and to hear the views of the general public.

IMPORTANT OPINION

"It has been very helpful to the members of the commission to hear the discussions in Vancouver of the National Council of Education, particularly on radio. A resolution was passed at one of the closing sessions of the conference, which reads as follows:

"'That in the interests of Canadian national life and culture, it is imperative to proceed at once with the organization of radio broadcasting on a basis of public service with Dominion and provincial co-operation.'

"In the opinion of the commission this resolution is worthy of very careful consideration."

U.S. PRESIDENT WANTS GREATER TARIFF POWERS

Washington, April 17.—(By Francis G. Aldham, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—Greater powers may be placed in the hands of the president to change the United States tariff when the revised tariff act is adopted in Washington this year. President Hoover, in his address to Congress yesterday, asked for a formula that will ensure rapid and accurate determination of changes in rates. He asked a reorganization of the Tariff Commission on a basis of higher salaries that will command men of the broadest attainments. What the President is after is believed to be a system under which he will have the broadest powers under the flexible provisions of the Tariff Act.

Under the flexible provisions the President can raise or lower any existing tariff rate by fifty per cent if the Tariff Commission recomeminds such a move.

YEARS NEEDED

President Hoover's address yesterday complained that the investigations of the comission now take years where they ought to take only months.

"Its very purpose is defeated by delays," he said.

Mr. Hoover is known to be anxious to get enough control over the tariff to permit him to use it as a bargaining power in national or international emergencies. The present system, which requires months of routine as a preliminary to changes, does not suit him.

One of the most interesting changes in the United States tariff from Canada's point of view is going to be the powers conferred on the Tariff Commission in consultation with the President, who said in his message yesterday that "many secondary changes in the tariff can well be left to an action before the commission."

Commons Approves Speaker's New Rules

Ottawa, April 17—Orders recently issued by Speaker Lemieux for the policing of the upper floors of the House of Commons and prohibiting Government messengers carrying liquor for members from liquor stores, were approved at a session of the House held in camera yesterday afternoon, it is understood. For nearly one hour and a half these orders were discussed behind closed doors, and it was only at 4.25 p.m. that the public was admitted.

No complaints against the orders of Speaker Lemieux were made from the Conservative benches, it is stated, but five or six members of the Liberal side, it is understood, spoke on the matter. When the "ayes" and "nays" were called, it is said only two or three "nays" were heard.

What Prominent Geologists Say:

PROFESSOR J. J. ALLEN, Geologist said: "The Turner-Wright Petroleums Limited drilling site is a complete closed dome sitting right over the major structure. It shows plenty of room for real accumulation of oil. It is reasonable to expect very big production at from 4500 to 5000 feet, and warrants one test hole to that depth."

MAJOR C. C. RICHARDS, Geologist, was retained by the late Chief Justice Hunter to give his opinion on the Turner-Wright Petroleums, Ltd. holding. He said, "In my opinion this property shows one of the finest structures I have ever seen in my life."

A. W. BAXTER, British Government Geologist, states: "The proposed drilling site of the Turner-Wright Petroleums Ltd. is a complete closed anticline . . . the most perfect anti cline in Turner Valley. (An anti cline indicates a fold in the earth which creates a cavity in which gas and oil accumulate . . . other geological conditions being favorable."

F. H. HUTTON, Geologist and director of Turner-Wright Petroleums Ltd., says: "I have been in the Turner Valley for 18 years . . . since 1911. I have studied the forms and conditions. In my opinion the Turner-Wright holdings are second to none in the whole district of the Turner Valley. It shows a complete closed structure. I have personally made fifty-two test holes on this site, and they show that the structure hidden from surface was still on the true dip. In my opinion this property has greater prospects than any holdings in the Turner Valley district. I was there on August 29, 1924, when Royalite No. 4, the first well in the Turner Valley, blew in. I had an opportunity of a wide selection of properties in the Turner Valley. In selecting and retaining the Turner-Wright Petroleums holding, I believe that I secured what will be the finest producing property in that territory."

NANCY PAGE

PETER PAGE JUNIOR PLAYS IN HIS PEN

By Florence La Ganke

Wee Peter. Repeter—Peter Page Junior, was growing by leaps and bounds. "Why shouldn't he," said Nancy, "when you consider all the food that child gets? He has his orange juice, the milk, long cooked cereal of farina-like texture. There is his vegetable soup, his puree of vegetables, and apple sauce well sifted and lightly sweetened. Then he gets twice toasted bread and graham crackers. Seems to me I no sooner get one meal over than I start on the next one. But it's worth it. He hasn't had one sick spell and he sleeps like a lamb." "And roars like a lion when he wants attention," added Peter. But really he was so proud of his son that he would have boasted had he cackled like a hyena.

The baby was now enjoying his baby pen. It was on the floor away from the direct line between doors so that he did not get a draft. To protect him the floor of the pen was covered with a washable pad which had gay little figures printed all over its surface. He was already beginning to notice these. The pen was not a beautifully enameled one, for the salesman told Nancy that those were apt to flake and that small children sometimes swallowed the paint. It had wood in natural finish just shellacked. The pickets were close enough together so that he could not by any mischance get his head caught between them. He had a wonderful time in his pen, and Nancy was glad to have him there.

Family Can Make Couple Miserable!

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Do I believe in long engagements? When there is anything to be gained by waiting, yes! If nothing is to be gained by waiting, no!

Of course there isn't any sense in children trying to get married on nothing and I should certainly never advise a young couple to marry unless there is enough income—either single or collective—to meet all requirements and emergencies, and enough left over for recreation. Otherwise, marriage will only be one long lasting war.

But it is not of money I would speak. It is about the young man whose family won't allow him to marry.

They are legion, these dog-in-the-manger families, the mothers and sisters and even fathers of young men in love.

But I am speaking of the case of the young man entirely surrounded by loving relatives who "just hate to give George up," and use every means in their power to prevent him from marrying.

Sometimes it is a mother alone, sometimes it is a sister—he need not have a corporal's guard of a family to make himself and his sweetheart miserable.

I know a girl who has been engaged twenty years to as fine a man, or he used to be, as I ever knew. His sister and his father had him on a chain. We don't think mothers would like you to marry just yet, they would say. Mother was dead.

The boy believed it. Of course they had to change tactics after a while. But it always worked. And now he's forty-five and she's forty and that marriage is not consumated yet. It never will be. The girl was attractive and had many suitors whom she gave up.

I wonder about such families. It's remarkable what liberties they take sometimes with each other's happiness.

Ottawa, April 17—The total cost of the reference to the Supreme Court of Canada concerning the ownership of waterpowers is estimated at $60 719. Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., is to receive $14,500 for counsel fees and H. J. Symington, K.C., $12,996.

Here Are Ten Good Rules For Treating Tubercular

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

The eminent authority in tuberculosis, Dr. Francis Trudeau, once said that patients with that disease did well in the desert, upon the mountain or in the middle of the ocean.

However, perpetual sunshine will not prevent tuberculosis and excessive sunshine is exceedingly irksome to many people.

In order to establish the current view of this problem, Dr. James Alexander Miller surveyed the available medical literature and studied the records of patients in various portions of the United States.

GIVES TEN RULES

As a rult of his study he has drawn certain conclusions which should be borne in mind by every person with tuberculosis who may contemplate a change of climate.

Here the yare:

1—The regimen of regulated rest and exercise, proper food and open-air life, is the fundamental essential in the treatment of tuberculosis. Suitable climatic environment makes this open-air life more easy, enjoyable and beneficial.

2—When these essentials are assured, a change of climate is of definite value in a considerable number, probably the majority of cases, but with the proper regimen many cases will do well in any climate.

3—Any change of climate involving the fatigue of travel is contra-indicated in acute cases with fever or hemorrhage, or in very far advanced and markedly debilitated cases. Absolute bed rest is the one essential here.

4—No patient should be sent away in search of climate who cannot afford to stay the reasonably to be expected time and to have the necessary food, lodging and care.

5—Competent medical advice and supervision are essential.

6—OnDe of the most valuable assets of change is the education of the patient. This may, of course, be obtained in a suitable environment without reference to climate, as in a sanatorium near home.

7—Selection of a suitable locality is an individual problem for every patient, depending upon his temperament, tastes and individual reaction to environment, as well as the character of his disease. The advising physician should have an appreciation of these as well as a knowledge of the particular environment to which the patient is being sent. Contentment and reasonable comfort are essential.

"NO IDEAL CLIMATE"

8—There is no universally ideal climate. For each patient there may well be a most favorable environment if we are wise enough to find it.

9—There is a reasonable amount of evidence that certain medical types of cases are more favorably influenced by certain conditions of climate, everything else being equal. For example, reasonably cold, dry, variable climate, such as is found in the mountains, for young or vigorous constitutions which will react well. Dry, sunny climates for laryngeal cases and those with marked catarrhal secretions. Equable mild climates at low altitudes for the elderly and those of nervous temperaments, as well as for those with arteriosclerosis, weak hearts or marked tendency to dyspnoea.

10—Successful selection of climate and environment for cases of tuberculosis requires wide knowledge of human nature, of places and of the disease. This can only be acquired by patience, skill and experience.

MENUS FOR THE FAMILY

Breakfast—Grapes, cereal, cream, surprise golden rod eggs, extra toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Clear bouillon, toast sticks, onion dumplings, apple sauce, cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Baked canned salmon, potatoes au gratin, buttered brussels sprouts, carrot orange and apple salad, squash custards, milk, coffee.

The woman in the country may find it convenient to substitute cabbage or cauliflower for the brussels sprouts suggested in the dinner menu. This change can be made without affecting the balance of food value in the meal.

ONION DUMPLING

Four large white onions, 4 tablespoons cold chopped meat, 4 tablespoons breadcrumbs, tomato catsup, 1 cup flour, 2 tablespoons shortening, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, milk, or water, 1 cup sifted canned tomatoes, 1 teaspoon sugar, 2 slices bacon, 1 tablespoon grated cheese.

Peel onions and simmer until tender but not broken. Cool. Remove centres and chop. Use part of the chopped centres with the breadcrumbs and meat to make a stuffing for the onions. Add enough tomato catsup to this mixture to make moist. Fill onions with stuffing. Mix and sift a savory and appetizing dish for a raw in shortening and cut in enough milk or water to make a soft dough. Roll to one-half inch thickness on a floured molding board and cut in flour squares. Put an onion in the centre of each square and wrap the dough around it. Place in a baking dish and bake in a hot oven until brown. In the meantime cook bacon until crisp. Chop very finely with remaining onion from centres and cheese. Add with sugar to sifted tomatoes and bring to the boiling point. Pour hot over dumplings and serve.

FIVE YOUTHS ARE BELIEVED DROWNED IN LAKE ERIE

Windsor, Ont., April 17.—Amherstburg, Ont., and Wyandotte, Mich., authorities have abandoned hope for five youths who set out in a rowboat from Sugar Island twelve days ago and have not been seen since. It is believed they were swept out into Lake Erie and drowned. When they left home they said they were bound for Toledo, Ohio, seeking employment aboard ships.

The five boys were seen last in the Amherstburg boat off Hickory Island, near Grosse Isle, and it is believed they lost control of their craft in that part of the river and were swept out into the lake.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

To Neutralize Acidity and Fermentation; Prevents Indigestion, Sour Gassy Stomach

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and got little more than slight temporary relief—sometimes not even that.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate of milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion. (Adv.)

MISS HELEN HART IS BRIDE TO-DAY

Wedding to John H. Watson Solemnized at Christ Church Cathedral

Christ Church Cathedral was the scene this afternoon at 3 o'clock of a quiet wedding when the Very Reverend C. S. Quainton united in marriage Helen Maud Hart, only daughter of the late Mr. F. W. Hart of Halifax and of Mrs. John Harvey, 714 Cook Street, and John Henry Watson, elder son of the late Mr. J. A. Watson and of Mrs. Watson, 1006 Chamberlain Street.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. John Harvey, the bride was charming in a frock of apricot georgette, fashioned with a long waistline, and having on the skirt a deep flounce of Chantilly lace made with uneven hemline. At the waistline a cluster of velvet flowers in variegated colors was appliqued on the georgette. With this was worn a silk mohair hat to match and trimmed under the brim with flowers to match those on the frock. She carried a bouquet of bronze Queen tulips and lilies of the valley.

Miss Audrey Topp was the only attendant and wore a frock of sea-foam green georgette made with plain bodice and ruffled skirt and carried a bouquet of mauve iris and mauve sweet peas. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Walter Watson. Mr. H. Davis presided at the organ.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson left later in the afternoon on a motor trip up the Island and on their return will reside in the Stanley Apartments, Linden Avenue. For traveling the bride wore a sports dress, the skirt of which was fawn crepe de Chine and the jumper of kasha trimmed with bands of peach, orange and brown. She wore a smart sport hat to match and a Shagmoor coat.

Among the many handsome gifts received was a Canadian General Electric vacuum cleaner from Jameson Motors Limited and members of the staff.

Presentation To Mrs. J. G. G. Bompas By Church Women

At the monthly meeting of the First United Church W.M.S. Wednesday afternoon, the Ladies' Guild were the guests of the society, the occasion being a farewell to Mrs. J. G. G. Bompas, who is shortly leaving for the Orient. Mrs. I. A. Gould, on behalf of both societies, presented Mrs. Bompas with a bar pin and a purse of gold. Baby Gladys Bompas came in for her share when she was presented with a life membership by the Mission Band. This had previously been presented to her by Mrs. R. W. Mayhew in the Sunday School on Easter Sunday.

Mrs. Bompas thanked the ladies for their kindness to the baby and herself.

A delightful programme was rendered by the Oriental children and the Mission Band, Miss Cronkhite and Miss Moffa assisting with the Oriental children, and Mrs. Navsmith with the Mission Band. Mrs. William Wright gave a solo which was very much appreciated. Delicious refreshments were served under the convenorship of Mrs. J. H. Schroeder.

The devotional part of the services were conducted by Mrs. Dow's Circle. Reports from the various secretaries were read and approved. Mrs. Calvert-Minute Womsh, read some very encouraging tributes paid to the missionary work by people not taking an active part in religious work. Mrs. I. W. Gibson gave a splendid talk on the fourth chapter of the study book, "Drums in the Darkness." Mrs. McKillop also gave a very brief but interesting talk on Christian stewardship. The treasurer reported that $96 had been collected at the Easter thank-offering.

Duncan Sister Modifies Story Of Kidnapping

Santa Monica, Cal., April 17—Mary Duncan, stage and screen star, is in a severely bruised condition at a hospital here following her reported escape from the automobile of an attempted kidnapper. Miss Duncan jumped from the car as it raced between Beverley Hills and Sawtelle, shortly before noon yesterday, after the driver with whom she had accepted a ride had attempted to chloroform her, she told police.

In a later statement issued at the hospital Miss Duncan modified the one she had given police. She said she noticed cans in the rear seat of the car, apparently paint. She began to grow faint, she related, and in attempting to open a window, opened the door instead, lost her balance and fell to the ground. Her clothing was torn when the driver attempted to break her fall, she said.

The identity of the man who had given her the lift and whom she said was about fifty years old, had not been established.

QUIET WEDDING AT CATHEDRAL

Miss Kathleen Colpman and John S. Proctor United To-day

A quiet wedding at which only relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom were present took place this afternoon at Christ Church Cathedral at 2.15 when Kathleen Allan, younger daughter of Mr. Frank Colpman, 1053 Richmond Avenue, and the late Mrs. Colpman, and John Stewart Proctor, younger son of the late Mr. W. F. Proctor and of Mrs. Proctor, Elford Street, were united in marriage by the Very Reverend C. S. Quainton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a handsome gown of Chantilly lace in the new Independence Blue shade, fashioned with the low-waist line, long sleeves and the skirt, which was of georgette to match, and lade had an uneven hem. With this costume the bride wore a smart hat of mohair to match the color of the gown, and trimmed with an ivory ornament. Her bouquet was lilies of the valley and Ophelia roses.

Miss Helen Colpman, sister of the bride was the only attendant and wore a frock of soft grey georgette with hat to match and carried a sheaf of red carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. F. E. Proctor.

Mr. H. Davis presided at the organ and played the Lohengrin Bridal Chorus on the arrival of the bridal party, and on their departure, the Mendelssohn Wedding March.

Following the service at the Cathedral a reception was held at the home of the bride's father.

Mr. and Mrs. Proctor left on the 4.30 boat for Seattle en route for Toronto, where for the last two years the groom has been a member of the staff of the Imperial Bank.

ORGAN RECITAL WELL RECEIVED

Prof. Warren D. Allen Gives Pleasing Performance at Metropolitan Church

Last night's session of the Musical Festival in the Metropolitan Church was opened with an organ recital by Professor Warren D. Allen, organist and professor of music at Stanford University.

The numbers played with remarkable organ virtuosity were "Carillon" (Vierre), "Bells of St. Anne de Beaupre" (Alexander Russell). The latter selection was inspired by a visit to Quebec of Mr. Russell, and is written as a tribute to a United States organist.

The third and final number was Sir Edward Elgar's famous military march, "Pomp and Circumstance."

Prof. Warren's recitals will be continued all week till Friday evening.

HOSTESS THREW BILLS TO CROWD

Washington Dry Agent Testifies Against Helen Morgan, Actress

New York, April 17 — One of the Washington prohibition agents known along Broadway as the "Four Horsemen," took the stand in Federal Court yesterday and told of one night club where he said he saw the hostess get drunk herself on the liquor she had for sale.

He was John J. Mitchell of Washington, first witness in the trial of Helen Morgan, actress and former night club hostess, charged with maintaining a common nuisance at Helen Morgan's Summer Home, a Broadway resort, where the Government alleges liquor was sold.

He said he first met Miss Morgan to talk to her at the night club last June 23, one of seven visits he made to the club.

"What did you tell her you were doing in New York?" Miss Morgan's attorney asked.

BUSINESS AND PLEASURE

"I said I was here on a combination business and pleasure trip," Mitchell replied, and the spectators, who had just heard the agent tell of spending from $50 to $100 an evening in his quest for evidence, tittered.

Mitchell said that on his visits to the club, generally accompanied by another agent and the agent's wife, he purchased champagne and brandy, the latter on Miss Morgan's recommendation. He said she sent the waiter to get some brandy from "the house."

SCATTERED DOLLAR BILLS

On one occasion, he said, Miss Morgan became intoxicated and went with him and his companions to another night club, where Mitchell said he lifted her to the bar and left her sitting there scattering dollar bills among the entertainers.

Mitchell testified that on one visit to the night club Miss Morgan asked him why he didn't start a similar resort.

"Get two or three good fellows with you," he quoted her as saying, "and then if there's any trouble you're just an employee."

The "just an employee" defence was used last week by Texas Guinan, who was acquitted of maintaining a nuisance at The Salon Royale. It is now Miss Morgan's defence.

BILLS NOT WASTED

Lawrence Tyson, another of the "horsemen" who accompanied Mitchell on most of his visits to Helen Morgan's Summer Home, corroborated testimony by Mitchell and threw a little more light on the incident of Miss Morgan lavishly distributing dollar bills from her perch on the bar of the Furnace Club.

On a later visit to her club Tyson said he remarked to Miss Morgan that it seemed to him she had wasted a lot of money. Miss Morgan replied, he said, that the money was not wasted because the entertainers picked the bills up and gave them to the manager, from whom she had borrowed them in the first place.

The trial was adjourned until tomorrow.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

EXERCISES FOR THE SMALL BABY

We have had letters from enthusiastic mothers anent the value of exercises for the small baby, and also a complaint from another mother that we had never written about exercises.

An exhaustive search through the library revealed no book on this subject, so we'll just have to concoct some for you, keeping the baby's future needs in mind, and also his limited capacities.

Even at six weeks, fond parents will notice that if the baby is stripped at bedtime and put on a wide bed, his little legs and arms will go like small pistons. If a parental arm is held firmly against these small legs, the baby will push rapidly away in the opposite direction. Almost in a moment he can push himself, if the arm is held against the feet, until he runs into the head or foot of the bed. So that ought to be our first exercise—giving the baby a solid surface to push against and letting him use it.

Lifting his head and holding it erect is a splendid exercise for his neck muscles and the ability to hold his head erect is a natural preliminary to being able to sit up, for he can't support his back until he is able to support his head.

If the baby is turned on mother's knee on his stomach, he will lift his head and look around. Then the heavy head will drop forward again. Let him do this two or three times and then put him down again. We aren't trying to develop a Hercules, but just give baby the opportunity to make use of his muscles in a normal manner.

Put baby on the bed and give him your two fingers. We all know what a grip the little rascals have, for up to three months they can support their own weight and be lifted off the bed. But we think that a little unnecessary. Instead, let baby grasp your fingers and then gently pull him upright so that he is sitting up. Then let him down gently again. Do this twice the first night and three times the second. Don't overdo anything.

So now we have three exercises for the small baby—the pushing one, the pulling one and the lifting one. That ought to satisfy any baby or any parent, for after these are completed if mother will give baby a gentle massage all over, and then let him lie and exercise in his own sweet way, he should be ready in about fifteen minutes to eat his dinner and go to bed and to sleep with the same contentment as an adult who has done a hard day's work.

Typographical W.A.—Woman's Auxiliary to local Typographical Union No. 201, will hold a five hundred card party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Skellern, 3048 Washington Avenue on Saturday, April 20, at 8 o'clock. A good turnout of members and friends is expected.

St. Alban's Ladies' Guild — The Ladies' Guild will hold a whist drive to-night at 8 o'clock in the church hall, Belmont and Ryan Street. There will be good prizes given and refreshments served. We hope for a good attendance.

The one function of a dentifrice is to clean the teeth. No dentifrice can cure pyorrhea; no dentifrice can permanently correct an acid condition of the saliva. Any claim that any dentifrice can do them is false and misleading.

Why Colgate's has become CANADA'S FAVORITE TOOTHPASTE

The amazing story of Penetrating Foam . . . that cleans where the toothbrush cannot reach

The reason why more people use Colgate's than any other toothpaste is simply that it cleans teeth better.

Cleaning the teeth, say dentists, doesn't mean merely scrubbing the outer smooth surfaces. It means penetrating down into the thousands of tiny crevices in normal teeth and gums where food particles and mucin collect and where decay starts.

No toothbrush can reach these hard-to-clean places. They must be cleansed by the dentifrice.

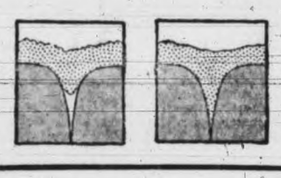
Hence the real test of your toothpaste is its ability to get down into these crevices and cleanse them thoroughly.

A recent scientific test proved that Colgate's has a greater penetrating power than any of the leading toothpastes on the market today. Colgate's superior penetrating power is due to the fact that it contains the world's greatest cleansing agent. When brushed, this cleansing agent bursts into a sparkling snow-white foam that sweeps over teeth and gums. This foam possesses a remarkable property (low "surface-tension") which enables it to go deep down into the tiny tooth crevices where decay starts. There, it dislodges clinging food particles and mucin, washing away these impurities in a detergent wave. In this foam is carried a fine chalk-powder—a polishing material used by dentists—which polishes the enamel safely, brilliantly.

Thus Colgates cleans and beautifies; purifies and refreshes the entire mouth, restoring natural loveliness of teeth and gums. If you have never used Colgate's, please try it.

How Colgate's Cleans Crevices Where Tooth Decay May Start

Greatly magnified picture of tiny tooth crevice. Note how ordinary, sluggish toothpaste (having high "surface-tension") fails to penetrate down where causes of decay lurk.



This diagram shows how Colgate's active foam (having low "surface-tension") penetrates deep down into the crevice, cleansing it completely where toothbrush cannot reach.

HANDKERCHIEFS TO MATCH

One Mother Says—

I take squares of fine India linen or other suitable handkerchief material, and bind the edges with a bias cut from scraps left over when I make dresses for my little girls. They take great pride then in selecting and carrying handkerchiefs to match their dresses.

To keep ordinary handkerchiefs separate, I sew around the hemstitching with the sewing machine threaded in colored thread, a different color for each child.

Hornsby's Failure In Pinches Causes Chicago's Defeat

"The Rajah" Fails to Collect Single Hit in Opening Game of Season Against Pittsburgh, But Gets Three Walks; English's Fumble in First Inning Expensive; Veteran Grover Alexander Gets Away to Fine Start by Humbling Cincinnati; Eastern Clubs Hope to Start To-day; Weather Plays Havoc With Opening of Season.

Eight rain-drenched teams in the Eastern half of the major leagues prepared for a delayed and moist opening to-day as Western contenders presented a battle array for the second skirmish on that portion of the baseball front. Teams of the seaboard were still beset by cold and the threat of rain, but all attempted to go through the inaugural ceremonies scheduled for yesterday and prevented by the storms.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, St. Louis Cardinals, Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Browns turned back their opposition in the four opening battles with the brightest picture unveiled at Chicago. Some 70,000 fans stormed the Wrigley Citadel for a first peep at the most highly regarded Chicago Cubs since the days of the immortal Frank L. Chance, the one-time peerless leader. About 50,000 of these gained admission to see the Pirates win by 4-3.

HORNSBY FALLS DOWN

The difference between victory and defeat for the Cubs was Rogers Hornsby's failure in two pinches and the generosity of Grimes toward the champion batter in other trying moments.

"The Rajah" collected three passes and two force-outs. Elwood English's fumble of Adams's grounder in the first inning gave the Pirates two unearned runs and another was honestly batted home at the expense of Charlie Root. From that point the Pirates held the game in hand, despite late rallies of the Cubs.

At Cincinnati, Grover Cleveland Alexander began his nineteenth National League campaign by turning back the Reds 5-2. Chick Hafey, who hit for all the bases with one aboard in the sixth, drove in four of the five St. Louis runs.

RALLY WINS GAME

The Indians rallied through the late innings to win from the Tigers by 6-4 in eleven innings as 15,000 Cleveland fans watched. Earl Averill became one of the very few major leaguers to make his bow with a home run by driving one of Earl Whitehill's shoots over the right field fence in the opening inning. Charlie Gehrig cleared the same barrier two innings later. Lind drove home the winning run in the eleventh.

Only 7,500 fans braved the elements for the opening game of the Browns who defeated the White Sox 3-1, thanks to Sammy Gray's fine work in the box.

TWO OLYMPIC TEAM GIRLS DENY CHARGE

Myrtle Cook and Kay Griffiths Claim No Dissatisfaction Among Members

Resignation From Toronto Branch Caused By Their Moving to Montreal

Ottawa, April 17 — Denial that the resignation of Miss Myrtle Cook and Miss Kay Griffiths from the Toronto branch of the Canadian Ladies' Athletic Association, was caused by dissatisfaction among the members of the Olympic Ladies' Relay team was expressed here last night by team members. Miss Cook and Miss Griffiths are moving to Montreal and this was the reason given for their intention to sever relations with the Toronto body.

Ottawa, April 17—Canada's Olympic heroes came to Ottawa amid the acclaims of hundreds of citizens, civic authorities and representatives of the various branches of athletic endeavor. Heading the group of athletes, who will perform at an indoor track carnival here to-night, will be the fleet Percy Williams of Vancouver, Miss Ethel Catherwood of Toronto and Jimmy Ball of Winnipeg.

"Please don't describe me as the fastest human," Percy Williams modestly appealed to the newspapermen.

"Why that is absurd. Do you mean to say that nobody has traveled as fast as I have?"

He admitted that he might be able to better the records he has already established as soon as he has mastered the virtue of a quick start.

"I'm always trying to improve that and believe that constant practice and keen competition will bring results," Williams said.

U. S. Golf Pros Warmly Welcomed At London To-day

London, April 17.—In one respect at least visiting golf professionals from the United States were given a royal welcome when they reached London to tune up their game for the Ryder Cup matches to be played near Leeds, April 26-27. The profusion of banners and bunting decorating Paddington Station has usually been reserved for Royalty.

Officials of the British PGA and members of the British Ryder team present to cry a formal "hello" were joined by thousands of plain golfers and Walter Hagen, captain, and his fellow stars of a thousand fairways had to be rescued from their friends, as they left their railway compartments.

Babe Ruth Is Married Early This Morning

New York, April 17.—Less than an hour after daybreak, Babe Ruth, king of baseball's home-run clouters, was married in St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church to-day to Mrs. Claire Hodgson, while a tiny group of early morning worshippers bent to their prayers.

In strange contrast to the boisterous diamond personality of the New York Yankee slugger, the wedding took place in the quiet dignity of the neighborhood parish, conducted by Father William H. Hughes, shortly before the regular 6.30 a.m. mass. Aside from the bridal party of half a dozen, there were less than sixty persons in the church.

JUVENILES WILL PLAY SEMI-FINAL

Nanaimo and Victoria West Clash Saturday For Right to Meet Vancouver

Meeting for the second time in the Provincial juvenile soccer championship, Nanaimo High School and Victoria West will play at the Royal Athletic Park on Saturday as a curtain raiser to the international match between the Washington State all-stars and Victoria all-stars.

The boys played to a 2-2 draw in Nanaimo in the semi-final played there some time ago. The game will commence at 1.45 p.m.

Vancouver Juvenile champions will journey to the home ground of the winner to play for the B.C. title.

If the same teams that played up-Island take the field on Satuday, Victoria West will be favored to win.

Great interest has been taken in the juvenile league this year and some exceptionally good soccer talent has been developed.

Irrespective of the outcome of the match, a keenly contested game is expected.

Rev. Kelly of Nanaimo will referee.

London, April 17.—Two hundred and twenty-four withdrawals in the past two days have cut the field in the English Derby at Epsom Downs, June 5, to ninety-eight. Two-thirds or more of that number will be eliminated a week before the famous race for three-year-olds.

Lord Astor, who usually has a contender, still has three horses in the field—Cragadour, Plot and Cavando.

"Classic" Horses To Open Flat Racing Season At Newmarket

Newmarket, Eng., April 17—The "classic" horses are coming on the stage in the new flat racing season. The Craven meeting opened here yesterday with the famous Craven Stakes, noted Derby tree, the feature race on Thursday and the free handicap on the same day also providing a glimpse of the Guineas Contenders in action, unless there are some unexpected withdrawals.

The Two Thousand Guineas for three-year-old colts and fillies and the One Thousand Guineas for three-year-old fillies only, will be run at headquarters on May 1 and 3 respectively, being the first two of the five classics of which the Epsom Derby is outstanding.

The free handicap stakes on Thursday should provide an excellent Guineas trial, if such as Kopi, son of Spino Kop; Ellenvale, a One Thousand entrant, and Gay Day go to the post.

Lord Derby's Derby candidate, Hunter's Moon, bay colt, won the Spring three-year-old stakes this afternoon. Another Derby horse, Lord Dewar's Motalgne, was third, while two more Epsom candidates, Vanstaten and Carthagenian, were unplaced.

New York, April 17—The United States sends its second detachment of athletic talent to Europe aboard the Aquitania to-night, barely twenty-four hours after the arrival of the United States Ryder Cup squad at Plymouth, England. Where men were the dominating figures in the first invasion of a week ago, women occupy the spotlight this time, for aboard the Aquitania will be Helen Wills and her tennis racquets and Glenna Collett and her golf clubs.

Miss Wills is returning to scenes of past triumphs; Miss Collett, after three previous failures, is going to England for another shot at the British women's golf championship.

Miss Collett, the present United States champion, plans to go direct from Southampton to St. Andrews, where the British women's title play begins on May 13. She expects to return to the United States by the first of June.

Miss Wills's partners in the team matches, Miss Edith Cross of San Francisco and Miss Marjorie Morrill, of Dedham, Mass., are to sail for Europe next Wednesday.

Taffy Able Sold By Rangers to Chicago Hawks

Detroit, April 17.—The annual meeting of the National Hockey League will be held in Toronto May 11, it was decided at a meeting of the league governors here. Some time after the annual meeting the league rules committee will meet to consider proposed changes in the playing card.

It was announced that the Chicago Black Hawks had purchased Taffy Abel, New York Ranger defence star.

The Hawks are at present homeless, having no rink of their own.

Paddy Harmon, one of the owners of the Hawks, is seeking a franchise in the National League and it is reported that he will organize a league of his own in Chicago if he can not come to terms with the associate owners of the Hawks. However, any talk that Harmon will attempt to break up the National Hockey League, is not being considered seriously.

Pyle's transcontinental foot race yesterday and with a stiff gale at his back blew into Richmond, first control point in the Hossier state, far in advance of the rest of the field.

Salo, who set a terrific paces yesterday despite cold weather, is third in elapsed time, standing more than five hours behind Gavuzzi. The bearded Briton increased his advantage over Gardner yesterday to 1 hour 17 minutes 48 seconds.

The Bunioneers have covered 735.8 miles of their 3,400-mile journey to the Pacific Coast. To-day's stretch was the longest run so far, but it was over level country and the pavement pounders made good time.

Blonde, Two-fisted Wildcat Casts Eyes On Walker's Crown

After Decisive Victory Over Armand Emanuel, Ace Hudkins Now Seeks Bout With Middleweight Champion; Jack Kearns, Manager of Walker, Says Bout May Come Off "Before Long"; Hudkins Also Has Desire to Take on Tommy Loughran; Draws No Weight Line; Emanuel May Retire From Ring.

Los Angeles, April 17—The ring's wildcat—Ace Hudkins, blonde-thatched, two-fisted middleweight phenom from Nebraska—having clawed to bits the boxing hopes of Armand Emanuel, San Francisco heavyweight, yesterday snarlingly surveyed through one good and one not so good eye, other fistic domains to conquer. Hudkins gazed truculently towards Rumson, N.J., where the middleweight king, Mickey Walker, is sojourning. It is with Walker that the "Wildcat" first would like to do battle; then let the others come—the bigger the better. Hudkins claims he was "jobbed" out of the decision in the title bout with Walker in Chicago last July, and that when they meet again, the New Jersey Bulldog will not be so fortunate.

That Walker is willing to accommodate Hudkins in his desire was made known here by Jack Kearns, his manager. Kearns said the match undoubtedly will be made and "before long." He stated that he had received offers from promoters in New York, Chicago and this city for such a fight. Ancil Hoffman, San Francisco promoter, holds a contract with Walker, calling for a $150,000 purse for the champion if he defends his title in California.

All fighters look alike to Hudkins—he picks on them his own size or larger. That may be seen in an earnest desire to come to grips with Tommy Loughran, handsome ruler of the light heavyweights.

DRAWS NO WEIGHT LINE

After his decisive triumph over Emanuel at Wrigley Field here last night, Hudkins draws no weight line. His brother-manager, Clyde, said that he already had offers for a match between Loughran and the "Wildcat."

"Both Paddy Harmon and Jim Mullens, Chicago's rival promoters, are trying to arrange such a bout," he said.

A square of adhesive tape above a discolored and slightly swollen right eye stood out as the only mark on Hudkins from Monday night's fight. The Nebraskan, many pounds lighter, so convincingly whipped Emanuel that ringsiders gave him from seven to all of the ten rounds.

A contrasting picture was seen in the attitudes yesterday of the two fighters. A characteristic Hudkins—all Wildcat—wanted more fights, and felt sure that he would win all. Emanuel, whom many thought would outstop, outjab and outlast the crowding, mauling Hudkins, was uncertain as to his future plans. The defeat crushed his aspirations, and there were many reports that he would retire from the ring. Emanuel, barely past the voting age, is a legalized attorney in California.

FRAGMENTS CUP IS WON BY SAANICH

Strong Rally in Second Half Gives Them 6-1 Victory Over Oak Bay

School Teams Put Up Fine Exhibition; Oak Bay Led 1-0 at Half-time

Running in six goals in the second half after finishing the first at the short end of a 1-0 count, Saanich Schools sent Oak Bay down to a 6-1 defeat in the final game of the Fragments of France soccer series at Oak Bay Park yesterday. By virtue of their victory, Saanich Schools retain the coveted trophy. Throughout the match both teams exhibited a good brand of soccer. They had an even share of the play in the first half. After the rest interval, Saanich swung into action and overcame the Bays' defence with fine combination play, to register a decisive win.

BAYS PRESS

Playing with the wind behind them Oak Bay pressed at the opening of the game. Fine defensive work by Kennedy and Williams, Saanich fullbacks, and air-tight goal keeping by Walker, prevented them from scoring. A few minutes after the first whistle, Todd was awarded a corner kick. Taking the kick like a veteran, Todd grazed the crossbar of the Saanich goal, but the ball was going too fast for the Oak Bay forwards and went out at the other side of the field.

Saanich returned from the goal-kick. C. Smith, diminutive centre half, succeeded in placing the ball in the goal mouth, but Carmichael cleared. The ball was returned, but Jenkins got his foot to it and sent it up the field with a high punt. Dawson, inside-right for Saanich, dribbled through and shot. Carmichael made another spectacular save to keep the Bays' citadel intact.

Campbell, fast left wing for the Bays, raced down the wing with the ball and sent in a good shot, but Walker saved. Todd shot from the right wing, but Kennedy headed the ball out to prevent what seemed to be a certain goal.

OPENS SCORING

One minute before the rest interval Salmon secured the ball about thirty feet out and sent in a soft grounder which slipped through Walker's legs for Oak Bay's only goal.

Five minutes after half time, W. Smith secured the ball in front of the Oak Bay goal and sent in a high shot that beat Carmichael for Saanich's first counter.

Shortly after, Morgan, right wing for Saanich, took the ball down the line and centred. Dawson headed the ball in for the winners' second goal.

Cameron led the Oak Bay boys back into Saanich territory, but Kennedy cleared.

NETS ANOTHER

From a scrimmage in front of the Oak Bay goal W. Smith, Saanich centre, got his foot to the ball and shot. Dawson followed in and scored.

Smith and Dawson staged a pretty combination rush to bring the ball down centre field a few minutes later. Dawson tricked the Oak Bay fullback and passed to Smith, who netted the ball on a hard ground shot.

Five minutes later Smith scored again to bring the count to 5-1 in favor of Saanich.

BACKS DEMORALIZED

Pacing these odds, the Bay back division was demoralized and failed to stop Morgan as he closed in from the wing. The outside right took the ball to within thirty feet of the net and drove in a hard ground shot that Carmichael had no chance to stop.

All members of the teams played good games, with Saanich showing a marked superiority in front of the goal. Walker turned in a fine performance in the Saanich net, while Carmichael stopped many hard drives for Oak Bay.

Armstrong refereed. The teams lined up as follows:

Saanich—D. Walker (Cloverdale), K. Kennedy (Victoria), J. Williams (Cedar Hill), G. Mowat (Tillicums), G. Smith (Strawberry Vale), C. Carpenter (McKenzie Avenue), C. Fulton (Strawberry Vale), H. Dawson (Victoria High School), W. Smith, (Strawberry Vale), Bently (Strawberry Vale) and N. Morgan (Victoria High School).

Oak Bay—Carmichael (St. Michael's), Hayward (Willows), McGregor (Monterey), Buckler (Oak Bay High School), Jenkins (Oak Bay High School), Thorne (St. Michael's), Campbell (Monterey), Lindsay (Cranleigh House), Bird (Oak Bay High School), Salmon (St. Michael's) and Todd (St. Michael's).

New York, April 17.—Failing to agree on a successor to the late John Conway Toole as president, club owners of the International League yesterday compromised by making Charles H. Knapp, president of the Baltimore Club, chairman of the executive committee with titular powers.

Belanger Easily Wins Over Dillon

Minneapolis, April 17.—Charlie Belanger, Winnipeg light-heavyweight champion of Canada, decisively outpointed Harry Dillon, also of Winnipeg, in a ten-round bout here last night. Belanger punished Dillon badly in the body in the late rounds, and had him hanging on in the tenth. Belanger weighed 176½, and Dillon 181¼.

J. Stewart, Reliance, 1.24.33, 1.421 yards per minute.

G. Stewart, Polka Dot, 1.35.35, 1.256 yards per minute.

R. Dickinson, Bonzo, 1.36.51, 1.239 yards per minute.

DENNENAY MUCH TRAVELED STAR

Famous Hockey Player Has Covered 70,000 Miles During His Career

Horace Greeley advised young "fellas" of his day to "go west," but Corbett Dennenay, one of the best-known players in professional hockey to-day, has gone both east and west—and also a little north and south.

Over a span of fifteen years as a pro hockey player, Dennenay has seen service in seven different leagues, sported the uniform of more than a dozen clubs and traveled close to 70,000 miles in doing it.

Dennenay's travels have taken him from one end of Canada to the other, from Victoria on the West Coast, as far south as Portland, Ore., as far east as Montreal; north to Edmonton, Alta., and in the midwest to Tulsa, Okla.

Probably no other athlete who ever cavorted in ice hockey has covered as much territory and looked over more scenery than Dennenay—and professional hockey has known some prolific travelers. He has played in every important city in Canada and added to that record practically every city in the United States that boasts of an artificial ice rink. He's earned his Winter hockey salary in both minor and major ranks, and has only to make the California Professional League to complete the unique record of having played in all leagues.

Last Winter Dennenay played for Newark in the American Hockey League.

Dennenay made his debut in professional hockey at Toronto, Ont., in the Winter of 1914-15. He's going on thirty-two years of age, and holds hopes of boosting his mileage to 100,000 before he's through.

Newman Continues To Gain on Davis In Billiard Final

London, April 17.—At the close of yesterday's play in the match for the English professional billiard championship tournament, Thomas Newman was at the table and had amassed 11,556 points while Joseph Davis, defending champion, had an even 12,000. The match began a week ago Monday and is for 18,000 points.

LAUGHS from the DIAMOND

BY BILLY EVANS

Slim Harriss, a pitcher who was different even to the spelling of his name, has finally passed from the majors. The Boston Red Sox have sent him to Minneapolis in a trade. However, Slim achieved most of his fame as a member of the Philadelphia Athletics.

After the trade that sent him to Minneapolis, someone asked Slim how he felt about going to the minors, and he replied without so much as a smile: "It will seem perfectly natural. I've been in the minors ever since I joined the Boston Red Sox."

Harriss was a colorful figure because of his size and many mannerisms that resulted from perpendicular measurements. The tallest pitcher in the majors, he measures six feet six inches. Harriss invariably afforded plenty of amusement any time he tried to field a bunt. At the bat he was one of the reasons why President John Heydler of the National League came forward with the suggestion that all pitchers should have pinch batters. Any time Harriss made a foul, the crowd cheered.

A quiet and reserved fellow on the field, Harriss was the last player any one would pick to lose his temper and dash into the grandstand after a tormentor. But he did once in Philadelphia, shortly before he was sent to Boston.

Sensitive about his lack of batting ability, Harriss, after striking out in three attempts to bunt, was none too good company as he walked back to the Athletic bench. Twice before during the game Harriss had done the same thing.

In either case, had he been able to move the runner to second through a sacrifice, the Athletics would have won in regulation time, for a base hit followed in each instance. His inability to even bunt had forced the game into extra innings. This time it was in the twelfth inning that he again failed to carry out Connie Mack's orders to bunt. Philadelphia crowds, a bit critical as everywhere, had taken him to task for each of the three failures.

"Say, Harriss, how do you manage to make a living in the Winter?" asked a fan who was thoroughly disgusted at the way he was making a go of it in the Summer. Harriss was only a short distance from the bench when that remark was shot at him. He was peeved, and glanced in the direction of his detractor.

"That big bum! Get wise!" said his neighbor. "He's a model in a macaroni factory."

Everyone laughed but Slim. He proceeded to leap over the low railing in front of the grandstand and make for the fan who dared to refer to his physique as a model for a macaroni factory.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF SCIENCE

(SUGGESTED BY AN OLD PAINTING)

Queen Elizabeth witnessing an experiment in chemistry by her physician, William Gilbert

The GROWTH OF A SCIENTIFIC IDEAL

SIMPLE as were the experiments by which William Gilbert, the Queen's physician, astounded the court of Elizabeth, they earned for him a knighthood and interested the sovereign in the scientific experiments of her learned men.

To-day, the kings of industry are vitally interested in the discoveries of the chemical engineer, for chemistry is the foundation of modern manufacture.

Nowhere is the commercial scientist of greater value than in Canada, where vast potential wealth awaits its fullest development.

Canadian Industries Limited brings to this field not only the services of its own chemical engineers, but those of two of the greatest chemical organizations in the world—Imperial Chemical Industries Limited, of Great Britain, and E. I. duPont de Nemours & Company Inc. of the United States.

The C.I.L. oval on any product represents the utmost in reliability and is a guarantee of the best Canadian workmanship based upon the world's latest chemical engineering knowledge.

This is No. 4 of a series of illustrated talks on scientific research and modern industry.

Mitchell Kingsley, the aeroplane designer, said at a luncheon in Washington:

"We spent a billion on our air programme during the war, and we didn't get a single good combat plane for our money. It's admitted that our air force is badly equipped and managed, and the excuses that the responsible heads offer us remind me in their absurdity of the schoolboy."

"'You claim to have mastered your ancient history,' the boy's teacher said sternly, 'but the leaves of your history book aren't cut.'

"'No, sir,' said the boy. 'I was in such a hurry when I read it.'"

"I never thought the Joneses were such good Baptists, 'till I saw them takin' those new kittens over to the river."

A commercial traveller was detained longer than he expected at a small town, and, missing the last train, was forced to put up at a local hotel for the night.

Being very anxious to catch the first train next morning, he summoned boots and told him to be sure and call him at six.

The boots promised, and as the clock struck, true to his word he entered the bedroom. Catching hold of the sleeper he gave him a vigorous shake, and exclaimed in a deep voice:

"Yer hour has come, sir!"

The village fire department was still on the job. "Why don't you stop?" yelled the angry house owner. "The fire is all out."

"I know it is," replied the fire captain, "but there's three windows yet to break."

"What are you studying, John?" asked Aunt Maria.

"Economics."

"I don't see no use in studying that stuff. If it's forced on you, you gotta practice it."

"A man buys a handy pocket pack of Marguerites. He smokes some—gives some away—then when the pack is empty—it goes overboard! The handy pack keeps cigars factory-fresh and fragrant—and when it's empty it's thrown away. It's a good reminder, too, because a man always knows that if he has no pack in his pocket—he has no cigars!"

It helped me with all my troubles and gave me an appetite where before I didn't eat at all and had to stop work and rest every once in a while. HIGH SCHOOL CLASSES AT TOLMIE SCHOOL

Older Children in Largest Grade School to Be Transferred

Saanich Students Now at Victoria High School to Complete Courses

High School classes in Saanich will be held at Tolmie School until the municipality is equipped with a special building.

The School Board last night decided to evict the older children from the largest schol in Saanich and re-equip the rooms made available with larger desks and other necessaries.

The cost of establishing the first year class in high school courses will be $14,500, which the municipal council will be asked to grant the board. Of the added expense $7,000 will be the net addition to the salary list after allowance for Government grants.

YOUNG PUPILS STAY

Arrangements will be made at the other schools of Saanich for accommodation of the pupils in the classes at Tolmie School, which are to be abolished. It is the intention of the School Board that the younger children shall not be disturbed. Tolmie School has accommodation for over 300 pupils, and the high school will only require space for about 180 for the first year.

OFFER ACCEPTED

The trustees accepted the offer of the Victoria School Board to continue tuition of second and third year high school students at the advanced fee of $120 annually. This acceptance was consent upon receipt of a definite undertaking by the Victoria School Board, which had made its offer subject to accommodation being available at the High School.

Trustee W. J. Jeune was chairman of the meeting, Trustee Hobbs was absent through illness and Trustee Brooks was also unable to attend.

GRAF ZEPPELIN SAILS TO HOLY LAND

A nomad of the skies, the mighty transatlantic Graf Zeppelin recently completed a cruise over faraway Palestine. The huge dirigible, looking like an immense cigar in a tinfoil wrapping, here is strikingly pictured as it sailed over smoking Mount Vesuvius on its way to the Holy Land. The Mediterranean voyage of 5,705 miles was made in eighty-one and a half hours. After another such cruise this month Commander Hugo Eckener plans two flights to the United States.

VALUE OF MUSIC NOW REALIZED MAYOR ASSERTS

Opening Festival, Civic Head Congratulates Association Officers on Work

Speaks of Influence of Music on Community

In his address of welcome at last night's session of the Victoria Musical Festival in the Metropolitan Church, Mayor Herbert Anscomb congratulated the officers of the association on their splendid work and assured them that the results were appreciated by the citizens of Victoria.

"On behalf of the city I would like to extend a very cordial welcome to those competitors and visitors from outside points who are attending the festival," he said. "I can only wish the competitors the best of luck, believe in this as in all other lines of competition may the best man win. I am quite sure our visitors will have a most enjoyable time and will all want to come again.

"Musical people are undoubtedly among the most interesting people to meet because in addition to the education expected of every citizen, they have the advantage of their training in the art of music," the Mayor continued.

"There is no greater factor in life for the making of sympathy, human brotherhood and genuine co-operation and no greater means of inspiration and encouragement than music, which speaks in a universal tongue and knows no creed or color.

FREE MUSIC

"Even municipalities have begun to realize that people need music and the provision of band concerts in public parks is now very general and may be but the first step towards giving free of charge the finest musical entertainments possible.

"What is needed in this city and age is a world different from the one in which we have to work and toil for the necessities of life and music creates such a world for us.

"We are guided as much by our feelings and instincts as by our intellects and music stimulates our imagination and lifts us above the humdrum affairs of our work-a-day world and gives us new ideals and aspirations. The good music and good songs of a people live through the ages when other works of more material character are forgotten.

EDUCATION AND LEISURE

"We have recently had the privilege of hearing one or two international experts speak on the city on the subject of education and leisure and I am sure the wonderful address of the different speakers must have given us all a finer and broader outlook on life.

"I think it can be fairly said that the Victoria Musical Festival Association is a real educational organization, inasmuch as it is endeavoring to inspire others to bigger and better things and create interest and enthusiasm for matters musical and to reach both young and old the value of good music.

"The society is performing splendid work and thoroughly deserves the whole-hearted support of the entire community in its efforts. It is obvious from the large increase in the number of competitors that the society is meeting with success. I can only say carry on in the way you are doing and the citizens of Victoria will shortly realize how much they owe to your efforts and I am sure you will not find them lacking in their thanks and appreciation.

WELL-EARNED REWARD

"In formally declaring open the third Victoria Musical Festival, may I hope that those ladies and gentlemen responsible for the management and administration will be given generous support by the citizens of Victoria and reap a well-earned reward for the many months of hard work incidental to the arrangement and preparation of the programme before us."

Colwood

Colwood, April 17.—A meeting was held at the home of R. W. Robinson on Monday evening to determine the winner for the shield donated by Prince Edward Branch No. 91, the Canadian Legion. The teams competing were Colwood, Langford and St. Aidan's. The final scores between Langford and St. Aidan's are very close, so on the advice of Mr. Saunders, representing the football association of the lower part of Vancouver Island, the meeting decided to have another game played between these two teams on neutral ground. This game will take place at Oak Bay on April 20.

The second quarterly meeting of the Council of the Esquimalt Rural Nursing Service will be held in Colwood Hall Monday evening, April 22, at 8 o'clock.

JOINT-EASE For Stiff, Swollen Joints

Rheumatic or Otherwise

Says: "When Joint-Ease Gets in—Joint Agony Gets Out."

It was a high-class pharmacist who saw prescription after prescription fail to help hundreds of his customers to get rid of rheumatic swellings and stiff, inflamed joints.

And it was this same man who asserted that a remedy could and would be compounded that would make creaky, swollen, tormented joints work with just as much smoothness as they ever did.

Now this prescription, rightly named Joint-Ease, after being tested successfully on many obstinate cases, is offered through progressive pharmacists to the millions of people who suffer from ailing joints that need limbering up.

Swollen, twingy, inflamed, stiff, pain-tormented joints are usually caused by rheumatism, but whatever the cause Joint-Ease soaks right in, through skin and flesh and gets right to and corrects the trouble at its source.

Remember Joint-Ease is for ailments of the joints, whether in ankle, knee, hip, elbow, shoulder, spine or finger, and when you rub it on, you may expect speedy and gratifying results.

It is now on sale at druggists everywhere for 60 cents a tube.

Every rheumatic sufferer ought to send to-day for free book, "The Inner Mysteries of Rheumatism" (test out). Address H. P. Clearwater, Ph. D., Box 801, Hallowell, Maine, U.S.A.

CHORAL CONTEST PRODUCES VERY KEEN COMPETITION

Frederic King, With Victoria Philharmonic Society Accomplishes Threefold Success by Winning Competition From Fairfield Festival Chorus; Vocal Work of Mrs. Arthur Dowell Praised by Adjudicators.

Triumph for the Victoria Philharmonic Society in the class for large choral societies and special tribute to Mrs. Arthur Dowell, who won the competition for vocal solo in which the singers played their own accompaniment, were features of the evening session of the Musical Festival held in the Metropolitan Church last night.

Frederic King, conductor of the Philharmonic Society, achieved his third notable success in the local festivals when the society captured the Columbia Paper Company's Challenge Shield. With the Schubert Club Ladies' Choir, he first gained the highest honors and last year was successful in winning off high marks with the Victoria Male Choir. Entering a new field of mixed choral work this year he has achieved the three-fold honor.

ARTISTIC PERFORMANCE

"Quite an artistic and effective performance," was the comment of the adjudicator, Dr. Daniel Protheroe, in reference to the singing of Mrs. Dowell, who with a beautiful rendition of "Sleep; Why Dost Thou Leave Me?" was the winner over D. Gray Campbell of Vancouver in the class for vocal solo in which the singer played his own accompaniment. Mrs. Dowell was also in a new field, having at previous festivals secured high marks in practically all soprano classes. Dr. Protheroe congratulated the festival committee in "breaking new ground" by holding this special competition.

The evening session was well attended and the finals in many of the classes were keenly contested, receiving well-merited applause from the audience.

Following the opening of the session, St. Louis College Choir, winners in their class, rendered their two test pieces and met with a hearty reception.

Class 20, Anglican Church Choirs, not exceeding twenty voices, found two local choirs in competition, St. Barnabas Church Choir (C. H. Simpson, conductor), and St. Mark's Anglican Church (Mr. Fisher, conductor), the Dean Quainton Shield going to the latter with 152 marks.

Dr. Protheroe said he could not say this contest was a success. Tonal qualities were missing and intonation not quite successful. The four parts should be heard all the time.

WELL ACCOMPLISHED

The final in Class 43, pianoforte senior, under 19 years, Professor Allen adjudicating, was awarded to Helen Wirth with 93 marks; Helen M. Riley, 87 marks, and Evelyn Harper, 78 marks.

Mr. Allen said there had been much interesting and remarkable piano playing during the day and that the three finalists of the evening delightfully caught the sense of the Rachmaninoff waltz in A major, and that their rhythmic effects were well accomplished.

In Class 34 for baritone, the award went to James G. Thom of Vancouver, 171 marks, F. E. Rowley receiving 161 marks. Dr. Protheroe emphasized that all singers should be natural and should never try to go beyond the meaning of the song. He congratulated both singers on their excellent interpretation. He presented the winner with the Gordon Holdcroft Gold Medal.

In the final of Class 36, vocal solo, open, singer playing own accompaniment, Mrs. Arthur Dowell chose Handel's "Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me?" and D. Gray Campbell of Vancouver selected "Vale" by Kennedy Russell.

Mrs. Dowell was awarded 85 marks and was presented with the J. A. Griffiths Gold Medal. Mr. Campbell received 77 marks.

CHORAL CONTEST

The Victoria Philharmonic Society competed against the Fairfield Festival Chorus, Major W. Harry Watts, conductor, in the final number of the evening. The test pieces were: "The Surrender of the Soul to Everlasting Love" (Peter Cornelius) and "Song of Prosperine" (S. Coleridge Taylor).

Dr. Protheroe said this competition was a very close one. The composer, interpreter and the listener should all be considered in programme selection and needed complete understanding of the harmonic structure, he said.

Neither choir could be said to be outstanding, said Dr. Protheroe. Two marks only separated the two choirs. Frederic King received the Columbia Paper Company's Challenge Shield on behalf of the Philharmonic Society, the winners, with 160 marks. The Fairfield Chorus received 158 marks.

MAY 24 PLANS AIM AT GALA JOY FESTIVAL

comedy relief is being made, and this year will be distributed evenly along the line of march.

Discussion turned last night on the provision of prizes that would attract top-notch entries, and arrangements for a parade of music and movement that would live up to the occasion. Handsome prizes will be given in all sections, as the most equitable means of defraying some of the costs of display.

SEEK CO-OPERATION

In a general appeal from W. T. Straith, chairman of the committee, the co-operation of every section of the public is requested, to make the May 24 proceedings an outstanding success, and an attraction to out-of-town visitors as well as residents. This year, Victoria will be host to large numbers of people from Seattle, Vancouver, and Up-Island points.

The committee concurred in inviting ideas from the public on any and all phases of the festivities, and has already received much valuable aid from this source. Full particulars as to the parade, or any other feature of the celebrations, may be secured from Harold Palmer, at the Chamber of Commerce Rooms, Government Street, where suggestions will be gratefully received.

The entry list, as drafted in tentative form by the committee last night, is as follows:

ENTRY LIST ARRANGED

International Section to include floats or groups from all nationalities.

Cities, municipalities and public utilities, floats.

Fraternal, social and service club floats.

Women's organizations, floats or groups.

It is also proposed to endeavor to secure entries for the additional sections as under: (a) Athletic clubs section; (b) juvenile maypole section.

One of the features of the parade, it is planned, will include the dashing turn-out of an oldtime stage coach, with armed and mounted outriders.

of them. The tone was sweet all the way through. The time was excellent and his markings would be very close between two of the boys.

Class 12—Vocal solo, boys under 16 years, competing for silver medal given by Miss Marjorie Watson. Seventeen entrants—1, Richard Eaton, 92 marks; 2, Raymond Ballard; 3, William P. Wickett, 90 marks.

Test piece—"Love Was Once a Little Boy, Heigh Ho!" (Wade).

There were fine voices in this class, and a capital song has been selected foro the boys, said the adjudicator. Facial expression was necessary in this kind of song and some did not get near this at all. The subtlety of the song seemed a bit too much for some, as they certainly did not sing as if they had ever been in any mischief.

RECITAL TO-NIGHT

To-night's session at Metropolitan Church opens with a second organ recital by the brilliant California organist, Professor Warren D. Allen. This will be as a tribute to California organ composers, no less than three numbers being represented in the programme. These are "Bourree in D Major," by Wallace Sabin, a prominent organist of San Francisco; "Legende," by Ernest Douglas, one of Los Angeles' outstanding organists, "Grandfather's Wooden Leg," J. W. Clokey, an organist at Pomona College, California. The concluding number will be Saint-Saens" brilliant "Fantasia in D flat."

SAANICH COURT TALKS TURKEY

Two Men Charged With Stealing Turkey Eggs Deny Offence

Say They Were Picking Lilies and Did Not Touch Setting Turkeys

Turkey eggs, their size and value, and whether or not a turkey would return to setting eggs after being disturbed were topics of debate in Saanich Police Court this morning when Alexander Patterson and James R. Donaldson were arraigned on a charge of stealing twenty-five eggs, the property of Thomas Raper.

G. H. Sedger appeared for the accused and W. L. Tait for the prosecution.

After hearing the assertion by the prosecution that Mr. Donaldson had taken eggs from under three turkeys on the Raper farm and a flat denial of this act by the defence, the case was adjourned until Friday morning to bring another witness.

The court will have to decide whether or not, while picking lilies on the Raper farm last Sunday, Mr. Donaldson took the eggs from the nests of the birds which were on top of some rocks in the pasture.

BARKING OF DOG

In his evidence Mr. Raper stated he had been attracted to the scene by the barking of his dog and had seen the two accused walking away from the nests. Mr. Donaldson having both his hands over his pockets. When he accosted the accused, the latter admitted having the eggs and returned them to him, witness said. Mr. Donaldson had said at the time he thought they were wild turkeys and had intended setting some of the eggs beneath a hen. The eggs were now practically no good to witness as the turkeys would not return to the nests. Although the eggs were probably worth about $1.00 apiece witness would not sell them for $2.50 apiece.

G. A. Porter, the lessor of the land, said he visited the Raper farm immediately after the incident and had recognized Mr. Donaldson driving away from the place.

DENY OFFENCE

Both Mr. Donaldson and Mr. Patterson flatly denied the offence, claiming they had gone to the property to pick lilies. They had seen the turkeys but neither one had touched them or disturbed the nests. They denied that Mr. Donaldson had had eggs in his pockets when accosted by Mr. Raper.

Mrs. Donaldson, wife of the accused, also testified that the party had been on the scene for the purpose of picking lilies, although she had not seen the incident out of which the charge arose.

The case was adjourned in order to secure the evidence of Mr. Donaldson's daughter.

THREE FRAUD COUNTS LAID

E. D. Bishop Pleads Guilty in City Police Court on All Charges

When he pleaded guilty on three charges of theft and fraud, Edward D. Bishop was remanded until to-morrow for sentence when arraigned before Magistrate George Jay in City Police Court this morning.

Bishop, who was employed as a taxi-driver, had failed to turn over to the firm some of the money which he had collected in the course of his work during a period extending from February 1 to April 13, according to Bert Beales, a partner in the firm. The accused was charged with having fraudulently converted $81.83 to his own use.

Two charges of cashing worthless cheques with Annie M. Jones were laid against the accused. Mrs. Jones, on the stand, said the accused had cashed a cheque for $7 on January 3 and again on January 7 had cashed one for $5. In each case she had been asked to hold the cheques for a certain period, but had been unable to cash them at any time, there being no account in the bank on which they were drawn.

Bishop pleaded guilty on all charges.

The accused was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detectives Marcus Phipps and William Stark.

SOUND BUSINESS IS SET AS BASIS OF PROSPERITY

W. S. Fallis of Montreal Impressed With Solid Growth of Country

Sound business is the basis of Canada's prosperity, according to W. S. Fallis, president of Sherwin Williams Company of Canada Limited, and former president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, who arrived in the city today from Montreal.

"Right across the country there are unmistakable evidences of sound business development," said Mr. Fallis in an interview with The Times at the Empress Hotel this morning.

"All the factories are working full time and there is steady industrial advancement throughout the East," he said. "There is a note of true optimism in the West."

SANE CONFIDENCE

Mr. Fallis, who is the head of one of the largest manufacturing concerns in the East, believes in development alone sane, sound and substantial lines.

He is never inclined to be too optimistic and bases all his arguments on concrete facts.

Having witnessed industrial development in Canada from small beginnings, Mr. Fallis states that he is amazed at the solid growth of the country and he is particularly impressed with the advance of the West.

Over-speculation, he says is not good for the country as it gives a false sense of security.

There is plenty of opportunity for sound and sane development in the country without resort to wild speculation.

IN FRONT RANK

The vast natural resources of the country properly developed will keep Canada in the front rank of productive nations, says Mr. Fallis. Mr. Fallis has been in business for forty years and he has seen Canada "grow up."

When he first came out to the Pacific Coast Vancouver was a mere hamlet of 6,000 people.

He established the Sherwin Williams business in Great Britain and was instrumental in bringing about the absorbtion of the firm of Louis Berger, of London. Last year Mr. Fallis was president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and did valuable work in the interests of industry, while guiding the destinies of that organization.

He stated to-day that he was out on the coast for pleasure as well as business. Mrs. Fallis is making a tour of the Orient and will sail for Yokohama by the liner Empress of Asia, due to leave here on Saturday.

"I would like to make the trip but am too busy," concluded Mr. Fallis.

DAIRYMEN FORM TESTING BODY

After a canvass made among dairymen on the south end of Vancouver Island, it was found that an ample number of cows had been registered to justify the formation of the Vancouver Island South Cow Testing Association, it was decided at a meeting last night of dairymen interested in improving their herds.

An organization was formed to cover the area south of Ladysmith, and directors were elected as follows: Cowichan, Alister Forbes and B. Young; Saanich, E. Raper and W. D. Michell; Metchosin, F. G. Waide.

At a directors' meeting following the general meeting E. Raper was elected president and F. G. Waide, secretary-treasurer.

K. R. Napier, who successfully passed the necessary examination for a licensed milk tester and the keeping of herd record books, was appointed as supervisor. Mr. Napier is a practical dairyman and is familiar with the care and feeding of dairy cattle for the economical production of milk.

ONTARIO POLICE HUNT ROBBERS

Beamsville, Ont., April 17—Four bandits, armed with revolvers, a sawed-off shotgun and with a machine gun mounted in a stolen automobile, raided the branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here yesterday and escaped with $2,000. The bandits took flight off the attempts of a local constable to halt them by returning his fire and after changing to a second automobile some miles from the scene of the robbery were lost track of by pursuers.

The second automobile bore a New York state license number and police were convinced the robbery was the work of a gang from south of the border and all border points are being closely watched.

A bloodstained handkerchief was found in the automobile which the robbers abandoned and it is believed one of them was wounded in the exchange of shots with the constable.

T. BOGGS TO BE SENTENCED

Vancouver Youth Found Guilty of Manslaughter as Result of Auto Death

Vancouver, April 17—After deliberating 1 houre and 45 minutes, the Assize Court jury here yesterday afternoon brought in a verdict of guilty, with a strong recommendation for mercy, against Theodore Boggs, twenty, student of the University of British Columbia on a charge of manslaughter following the death January 13 of Edward Oliver Kaye, instantly killed at Pacific and Granville Streets by being struck by an automobile.

Mr. Justice Gregory announced he would pass sentence on the convicted youth at the end of the assizes.

J. W. deB Farris, K.C., defence counsel announced an appeal would be launched.

JUDGE'S ADDRESS

In his address to the jury yesterday afternoon Mr. Justice Gregory said:

"There are two main factors you must consider. The first is, did the Studebaker car travel at such a speed as to make it dangerous to pedestrians and was it the car which killed the man Kaye? Second, if so, was the accused driving the Studebaker?"

"You have a duty to perform to society, to protect citizens, but you have also a duty to the young man, and must remember that should he be convicted it cannot bring back the life of the victim."

SPEED OF AUTO

Dealing with the speed the car was said to have been traveling at, the judge said: "I do not think it is necessary for you to come to any conclusion as to how fast the car was traveling, but you must be satisfied it was fast enough to be dangerous to pedestrians. If the car was going slowly it will take a good deal of ingenuity to state how the accident happened. Evidence of witnesses conflicts greatly as to how many miles an hour the car was traveling, but at the same time all the evidence showed it was traveling at a great pace.

"Reconstruct what happened," the judge advised. "Do you think it possible all these witnesses who came here and testified to excessive speed were mistaken?"

DRIVING OF CAR

Referring to the remark of one of the witnesses that a young woman might have been driving the car, Prosecutor W. J. Baird, in his address to the jury, said Boggs, according to his own statement at the police court, drove the car on the night of January 13.

In referring to the speed of the death car, Mr. Baird spoke of the many rates of speed told of by witnesses, and he set an average the car was traveling at forty-five miles an hour.

DEFENCE ARGUMENT

J. W. de B. Farris, K.C., defence counsel, made a strong appeal for the release of the accused.

"Who was the driver of the car?" he asked. "Was it the accused? There has been no evidence submitted, other than Boggs's own statement to police that he drove the car late at night, January 12, while the accident took place at 12.30 a.m., January 13," said Mr. Farris.

GARAGE MAN TESTIFIED

Walter Halstead, garage man at 4401 Tenth Avenue West, a witness yesterday, said he recognized photographs of the car as that of Professor T. Boggs and said he had known the car for the last two and a half years. Asked by the court as to what speed the car was capable of attaining, the witness replied between fifty and fifty-five miles an hour.

No witnesses were called for the defence, and the accused youth was not placed on the stand.

Eastern Baseball Clubs Still Held Up By Bad Weather

New York, April 17—Major League baseball clubs of the east gained on the fickle Spring weather to-day, but only slightly. Three games were postponed to-day, making the unprecedented total of seven in the first two days of the season. Washington rallied to the cause of baseball with the only game in the eastern sector.

Rain stoppd the show at Boston where the Braves were prepared to resist an invasion of the Brooklyn Robins, and the Giants and Phillies were forced to remain away from a rain-soaked field at Philadelphia.

The grounds and cold weather caused a postponement of an elaborate opening day cremany at the Yankee Stadium.

Committee of Commons Hears Statement By Member of Grain Board

Ottawa, April 17—There is no advantage in shipping to the United Kingdom grain of any better quality than the standard samples set each year, because no better price will be paid to the producer. This was the statement of John Gillespie, dealers' representative on the Grain Standards Board, appearing yesterday before the agricultural and colonization committee of the House of Commons.

Buyers on the European grain exchange set the price each year on the basis of the samples sent over early in the season by the Canadian Government. If wheat of better quality appeared later, the Canadian farmer would lose, he claimed.

The work of the laboratory of the Board of Grain Commissioners in Winnipeg did not have much effect on the prices obtained.

The millers in Great Britain made up their minds on the samples and even had information before the standards were set, because they had agents in Canada who were always taking account of conditions, he said.

These statements were made as a result of questions by Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce, whose department administers the grain act.

Protein content was only one factor in connection with wheat prices, Mr. Gillespie continued. It was impossible to grade wheat on protein content, because No. 1 wheat and No. 3 wheat of the same protein precentage could not be binned together. They would not have the same milling value.

Roseleaf and Miller Higgs was the Cockney seller of windmills Nicodemus Nobbs, and Mrs. Hume took the part of Susan, the maid. All the ladies were presented with beautiful bouquets by Miss Ruth Higgs and Miss Mary Larson. A dance was held after the performance. A delicious supper was served, Mrs. Lord, Mrs. Zala, Mrs. Page and Mrs. Twiss were the hostesses. Congratulations are due to Mr. Zala as stage manager. About $42 was taken at the door.

A most enjoyable Cinderella dance was held on Saturday evening in the Galiano Hall. Miss M. Creighton danced the taps. Mr. O. New was master of ceremonies. Mrs. Bamlinck and Mrs. Murcheson were the hostesses.

Mrs. Thornley of Sidney is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Lord.

The Misses Stella and Norah Shopland have left for Vancouver after spending a holiday here.

Master Nigel Morgan has gone to Vancouver after a holiday spent on the Island.

Certainly beats the crowded cars!

ASK anyone who rides a C.C.M. Bicycle to work every day if he'd rather ride his wheel than take the street car? He'll laugh at such a question.

A wheel saves him from the rush-hour crowds. A wheel saves him from running to catch cars and waiting for transfers. A wheel saves him paying tribute for the privilege of standing in the aisle hanging on to a strap or a handrail. With a bicycle he can pick his own route home clear of traffic jams. A bicycle saves him time. It makes him feel better, work better, eat better and sleep better.

A C.C.M. has many points of superiority including—larger ball bearings for easy running, Triplex Crank Hanger, Hercules Coaster Brake, Dunlop Tires, 20-year Nickel Plating, three coats of Enamel baked on over a coat of rustproof.

Ask the nearest C.C.M. dealer for a C.C.M. catalogue showing the different models, or write to Canada Cycle & Motor Co., Limited, Weston, (Ont.), Montreal, Winnipeg or Vancouver.

WHITNEY LETTER

By Branson, Brown & Co. Ltd

New York, April 17.—Whitney of the Wall Street Financial Bureau says today:

EXPECT FURTHER RALLY

"The expected rally, in yesterday's session, while delaying itself until late in the day, had at least the advantage of not being fired off by too early a start and to that extent may be expected to carry well into to-day's market after a possible minor setback is encountered as a result of the less than expected terms of Steel's announcement. The nine per cent call money rate is thoroughly justified by the rapidly returning cheques issued for mid-month disbursements, and may even entail the addition of 1 per cent more during the day until the complete absorption of these disbursements. At the end of the week, however, I expect money to be just as low as it was at the end of last week, in addition to which, I believe, the forthcoming brokers' loan figures, to be issued to-morrow night, will show a further decrease of approximately $100,000,000, and by so doing plainly indicate that continued progress is being made in the credit situation.

"Market leadership will continue to be found in the oils and steels, with half a dozen secondary groups adding their effort to further advance, so that, in spite of the fact that the steel directors have not announced a basis for the new stock quite up to the expectations voiced by a large proportion of speculative Wall Street, and Mr. Hoover's speech contained little if anything of market significance, we will suffer no lack of issues which will show the market how to be higher. The steel announcement is constructive to the extent that the directors, rather than choosing what would constitute a gesture of generosity, have adhered to good financial practice and accomplished the bond retirement with a minimum amount of new stock.

"The Hoover speech is likewise constructive to the extent that, while lacking market incentive, it did contain a rather definite word to Congress that they were called together primarily for only two pieces of legislation, and that, completing both, they were not expected to pay much attention to any of the innumerable proposals designed to legislate against the credit which the stock market is using.

COMMENT

"American Can's new record is simply the first step in an advance which I do not believe will undergo any worthwhile reaction until it reaches 150.

"Industrial Alcohol is now across 150 and I expect a new record almost any time, which likewise applies to American Telephone and Telegraph.

"General Electric should be bought for the market's biggest advance just so long as it remains within a few points of 255.

"Continue to buy the Standards of California, New Jersey and New York, Montgomery Ward between 120 and 122, Texas Gulf Sulphur under 82, Yellow Truck under 50 and United States Steel on any temporary dip today."

N.Y. Market Gossip

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Ltd.)

New York, April 17.—Daily average crude oil production in week ended April 13 decreased 44,750 barrels to 2,616,082 barrels, according to Oil and Gas Journal.

American Smelting & Refining Company has reduced the price of lead fifteen points to seven cents a pound.

The Humble Oil & Refining Corporation has increased the posted price on salt flat crude twenty cents a barrel, to $1.

At annual meeting of Graham Paige stockholders, increase in authorized common from 2,000,000 to 2,600,000 shares was approved.

D. A. Schulte, president of Schulte Retail Stores, says no more dividends should be paid until we make money out of the new departments.

Export copper price reduced to 18.30 cents from 19⅛ cents. Domestic copper offered at 18½ cents a pound, off ¼ cent.

Lead prices reduced fifteen points to seven cents a pound. New York. Lead ore price reduced 7.50 a ton, to 92.50 f.o.b. Joplin, Mo.

Robert Reiss & Co. combined gross sales for quarter ended March 31 were $1,728,811, not including sales for agency accounts which were included in last year's figures of $1,843,694 for first quarter.

Dr. Jos. J. Klein, income tax expert, interprets decision of I.R.T. by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in the April 8 issue of Interest Bulletin as meaning that "rights" received recently by owners of New York Stock Exchange seats are taxable only upon sale of said rights and then only if a profit is realized, based on original cost of seat.

Total new insurance business for first quarter 1929 was $3,167,287,000 against $2,945,123,000 in 1928 quarter, and new business in March $1,69.-881,000 against $1,112,659,000 in March 1928, according to Association of Life Insurance Presidents.

(By R. P. Clark Over Leased Wire)

New York, April 17.—It justifies our theory that the reaction has reached its culminating point. On Tuesday we usually witnessed another period of selling, and this marked the final selling wave of the week. The proper attitude of the trader should be the buying of stocks for a turn during all weak spells.

The opening of Congress can be considered as a constructive event. President Hoover's message will undoubtedly find a favorable reception throughout the country, and will create an optimistic mood among investors as well as speculators. Those in close touch with the market will act immediately on the President's message and will buy stocks in industries which will be effected by the prospective favorable legislation. The participation of the general public will come only later, after the President's message has been read thoroughly and understood fully.

With these prospects in view, we look for a better turn in the market during the next few days. The quarterly reports which are now making their appearance show that industrial conditions are highly satisfactory and earnings are well within, and in many cases, above expectations. These reports also indicate good prospects for the second quarter, which means the first half of 1929 will show record-breaking earnings. This will encourage investment buying and bring about the normal recovery, thus enabling turns in the conservative issues. Lower money later in the week should also contribute to the market's recovery.

If the safeguarding of your capital is important to you, your holdings should be checked periodically.

MARKET ADVANCES WITH AVERAGES UP OVER 5 PTS. FOR DAY

Wall Street, New York, April 17.—The market took on a firmer tone to-day, money dropped from 8 to 7½ per cent, and sales for the day run up to 7,493,500 shares.

At the close of the market the Jones averages of thirty industrials stood at 309.91, up 5.72 points for the day, and of twenty rails at 150.25, up .23 points for the day.

Industrial Alcohol was one of the strongest features, rising from 152½ to setablish a new high at 157¼.

American Can over 137, Youngstown Sheet over 131, Stewart Warner over 70, all new highs. Skelly and Union were two of the oil group that reached new higns.

Auburn Motor climbed 7 points during the day to reach 180.

COPPER BUYING RENEWED

The fact that consumer buying has reappeared in copper metal around 18 cents, after having been absolutely dormant for several days, may be of considerable importance and carry significance as to the market tone of the copper stocks. They have followed faithfully the decline in the price of the metal and, in addition to this development, general market unsettlement, undoubtedly has added to speculative liquidation. If it were to develop that the metal price decline were at an end for the present, it is altogether likely that the copper shares would display a much steadier tone. It is unlikely that we shall witness a sustained upward move in the group for the present, even assuming stabilization of metal prices, but there may well be a sharp trading recovery.

The large part of the speculative interest in the steel group has been concentrated on U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Inland and Youngstown, which have been spasmodically active. Merger rumors are again connecting the three organizations, but irrespective of that, the present earnings trend of these companies is such as to justify their current market steadiness and to point to somewhat higher prices, particularly if the call money market should develop an easier tone in the next few days.

Among the rails, New Haven is standing out for its quiet strength. In the first two months the road reported a net operating income of approximately 45 per cent ahead of the same two months last year, and indicating that current earnings are at the rate of at least $9 a share. New Haven appears to have developed an earning power which makes the payment of the present $1 divident possible and it is not too much to think that there may be still higher returns before the present year is at an end.

There are signs of a somewhat better demand for the tobacco shares—notably American Tobacco and R. J. Reynolds. It is officially stated that first quarter earnings of the latter were well in excess of the same period of last year.

New York, April 17.—At the opening of the day's session most of the attention was concentrated on Steel common, it being believed by many traders that there might be some special pressure on the stock following the announcement of offering of additional shares for subscription. Steel was offered quite freely, but the selling was not large and was not accompanied by a spread of offerings to other sections of the list.

As a matter of fact floor traders were quick to note the absence of liquidation and by the beginning of the second hour the market assumed a firmer tone, and for the remainder of the day gave a good account of itself.

The oils were featured, but there was also greater buying activity in other section of the list than there has been for several days past. Money was somewhat easier, the renewal rate of 8 per cent being succeeded later by a call rate of 7½ per cent. It is argued that with the peak of the Spring commercial borrowing season at hand, there is a prospect of somewhat easier money for the next several days, and this, coupled with the fact that liquidation in the important issues seemingly has dried up, caused a moderate reversal of trading sentiment and a better feeling.

It was reported that in trade circles it is believed that there is better than a fair chance of copper price stabilization at or around 18 cents. Traders who study the technical position of the market argued to-day that an outbreak of activity on the upside, following days of dullness and narrow fluctuations, indicated a fairly substantial recovery. Large market operators were reported to be especially active in the oils.

TO-DAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Limited)

Winnipeg, April 17.—Wheat: Market was very nervous and erratic to-day, with the result that slack was taken out of the market by the seaboard buying on the dips and the market was able to hold firm during the latter part of the day. Further liquidation at the start causing weaking, but the offerings were absorbed by exporters and seaboard houses combined with some short covering, the sellers of yesterday accepting profits.

Winnipeg displayed more strength than Chicago which was mostly snarply lower. Export business worked over night based on yesterday's break in prices was estimated at 1,000,000 bushels which was larger than the daily business has been for some time but does not amount to a great deal when it is considered that Canada has still a surplus of around 195,000,000, and the new crop being seeded.

In the cash market there was a good demand for No. 3 Northern and lower grades, shippers taking all of them at ¼ to ½ over the previous close. Navigation is now open and several boats are on the way up the lakes.

Some further light showers were received in the Canadian West but clear and higher temperatures was the forecast. The weather over Winter wheat territory appears to be clear and favorable. During the last fifteen minutes the market turned higher with the shorts running to cover due to the late upturn in Chicago.

Coarse grains—Oats and barley were firmer through with a fairly good demand from seaboard and domestic circles for barley and oats respectively. There was very little pressure on the market. Rye was very dull.

(Branson, Brown & Co. Ltd.)

Chicago, April 17.—Wheat: While liquidation was again heavy at times, the market showed more resistance and the decline failed to run into the stock less selling that was uncovered yesterday. Liquidation has been heavy and it should not be overlooked altogether.

There are some reports indicating that the wheat outlook is not quite so favorable in some sections and the crop score period is not over by any means.

Statistically the situation is weak, but Broomhall states a big demand for wheat is expected all through the Summer, as white bread consumption is increasing through Europe also some sections of non-European countries.

A good export business was reported at the seaboard, including hard Winters, although Gulf premiums were raised quarter to half. With prices on a cheap basis, with farm legislation pending, export business developing on dips, and crop situation subjected to unexpected changes, think advantage with the buyer on fair recessions.

SUGAR

New York, April 17.—Raw sugar was quiet and unchanged to-day, with offerings at last paid prices of 3.91 for spots, duty paid. No sales were reported. No new buying has developed, and there seems to be enough second-hand sugar available to fill what little demand is in evidence at prices below the list of refiners.

Prices were quoted at 4.90 for fine granulated by all refiners.

J. A. MacDonald, Montreal, Dies

Montreal, April 17.—John A. MacDonald, director of national advertising for The Montreal Star and prominent in publicity circles in the city, died here yesterday. Mr. MacDonald, who was in his forty-second year, had served on daily newspapers, farm publications and magazines.

Speculation Costs Millions

Speculation costs the citizens of Canada many millions of dollars annually. Figures prove it does not pay. There is no reason for this loss of savings in precarious "Investments." The same expert counsel is available to small savings as to large capital. The only difference is that careful investors seek advice while small capital yields to sales talks and risks all on unproved promises.

No matter how small the sum may be, get the facts from us or some other disinterested institution. There is no obligation.

CANADIAN BUSINESS FOR FIRST QUARTER STANDS ABOVE 1928

Montreal, April 17 (By B.C. Bond). — "Industrial activity in Canada in the first three months was maintained at a high level," The Montreal Gazette to-day says.

"And preliminary reports indicate that business was on a greater scale than in the first quarter of last year. There was a larger movement of merchandise in production, importation and distribution than a year ago.

"Comparatively few branches of industry and trade operated below the high levels of last year and both in value and volume, commercial activity as a whole made new high records."

PAPERS SHOWING BETTER

Montreal, April 17 (By B.C. Bond).—Quite substantial revival of interest in shares of the paper group is the feature of the market here.

The strong and active move follows on the heels of the newsprint figures for March, which revealed a quite marked improvement.

Canada Power and Paper has been a leader in activity. Fraser also advanced with Wayagamack, Port Alfred and Abitibi.

In well informed quarters is heard intimation that tentative plans for mergers are under consideration, which would have much to do in placing the industry once more on a sound footing. Much of the buying is stated to be for the pull.

That shareholders will receive full benefit of the great wave of prosperity which the company is enjoying, was further evidence by the action of the board of directors of Dominion Bridge Company in making another increase in the dividend rate, at yesterday's meeting when a quarterly dividend of 75 cents per share was declared. Since the stock was split late in 1927, shareholders have received valuable rights on two occasions and also a 20-cent bonus in the latter part of last year. Up until the present the stock has been on an annual dividend basis of $2.80 per share. No halt is indicated in the remarkable programme of construction that is going on or contemplated throughout the Dominion, and this fact has caught the imagination of many about the street in their attitude towards this particular stock. It is understood that the company is spending several millions out of earnings for plant extensions to take care of the great volume of construction work that appears in line for the company for some years to come.

In the general forward advance of the papers, Brompton was somewhat neglected. There is no doubt that the issue is not over-valued at present levels, as the common stock represents the sold capital obligation of the company. In 1928, a poor year for the newsprint industry, Brompton was able to show $3.56 on the common, as against dividend payments of $2. One of the main reasons why the issue appears attractive is that in many merger negotiations, Brompton Pulp and Paper would no doubt figure prominently.

C.P.R. STOCK TERMS

Details of the terms of the C.P.R. melon show that the company is offering to shareholders of common stock of record May 2, 1929, the right to subscribe to $30,000,000 additional common capital stock, comprising 300,000 shares of the par value of $100 each, in the proportion of one share of the new for each ten shares held at the time of record, at the price of $170, payable in four instalments. The right to subscribe will expire on June 17.

The company will also offer to its officers and employees the right to subscribe to an additional $5,000,000 ordinary capital stock at $170 per share on a monthly instalment plan. This offer is in pursuance of a policy inaugurated in 1927.

LEAD PRODUCTION UP

New York, April 17.—Production of crude lead in the United States and Mexico amounted to 79,790 tons in March, as against 71,639 tons in February and 62,330 tons in January, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

VANCOUVER MINING MARKET

By Miller, Court & Co. Ltd.

(Miller, Court over leased wires)

Vancouver, April 17—The market was very dull to-day. Home and A.P. Consolidated, among the oils, showed the chief life with Home gaining about 100 points from yesterday afternoon's prices, and closing at 21.50-21.75.

Among the mines Big Missouri was firmer closing up at 115-117. Golconda also closed up near its top.

Pend Oreille sold ex-rites in Vancouver to-day and closed at 6.00-6.25. The rites were quoted at 1.25-1.50. Reeves-McDonald also eased on some of the adjustment selling that has been going on in Pend Oreille. Many brokers have been advising their clients to sell half their Pend Oreille stock in order to take up the new stock at 5.00. It was announced to-day that Pend Oreille shareholders will be told how much ore tonnage was blocked out at the company's property last year, at their annual meeting on April 30, by President Lewis P. Larsen. Mr. Larsen said the forthcoming report would cover fully the amount of ore reserves blocked out, information that has been eagerly looked for for some time.

Net profits of Granby Consolidated total $1,522,194 for 1928, equal to $3.45 a share. Earnings during 1927 amounted to $96,208, or 21 cents a share.

A special report from Noble Five shows that the new ore shoot opened two months ago on the twenty-foot level has widened to twelve feet. This improvement was disclosed in extending the raise to the 700-foot level, J. G. Sheppard, superintendent, said. This raise will be continued from its present height of forty feet above the 800-foot level for another sixty feet, when the 700-foot level of the main ore shoot will be extended to meet it, thus at one stroke effecting a ventilating connection and blocking out ore in the new shoot for early mining. With the advancing season and the increased flow of the creeks, the power situation throughout the district is improving and in the case of the Noble Five, the mill is now putting through seventy-five tons of development ore a day, as against the thirty-four tons which was the average for the first three months of the year. By the end of April it is expected the daily run will amount to 100 tons.

OIL FIELD PROGRESS ABSORBS INTEREST

Miller, Court, Over Leased Wires

Calgary, April 17—Oil stocks were firm to-day on the Calgary Stock Exchange, with Home Oil firming up 100 points or so from yesterday afternoon's levels.

With the more open weather now prevailing, most of those interested in the market are now looking directly to the field and the actual developments there.

Mayland is now drilling at a depth of 5,337 feet, J. A. Williams, managing director, announced.

With a gas flow of around 10,000,000 cubic feet a day, Royalite No. 14 is being drilled deeper and tools were run in yesterday for work to continue, it was announced to-day by Imperial Oil.

McLeod No. 1, which shut off production again Monday after being in for several days, had not come back last night when the crew laid off work for the day. The hole has become plugged by the side of the tools which were lost in the well a considerable time ago and which have caused a great deal of trouble with temporary plugging from time to time. Tools were run in again yesterday and the crew worked all day endeavoring to drill out the plug. McLeod No. 3 drill was run to within sixty feet of the bottom of the hole and about six feet of hole was cleared. There is some obstruction in the hole at this level, though quite recently tools were run down another forty feet, but when another attempt was made to get them down to this level they were stopped.

Spooner No. 2 made another three feet of hole Tuesday, bringing it to a depth of 209 feet in the lime.

Cleaning out was still in progress Tuesday at Calmont No. 1, following the shot of nitroglycerine, which was fired Saturday in order to get rid of the lost tools. The hole was not cleared to a depth of 120 feet, but there remains another 70 feet to clear before the bottom of the hole will be reached. Drilling into lime will then be continued.

McDougall-Segur, No. 2, was about 190 feet deep in the lime Tuesday evening, drilling in a slightly harder formation than that in which 15 feet of hole was made the previous day. There has been no change in the gas flow, which is about 3,500,000 cubic feet a day, and from which some production is being taken.

Preliminary steps are being taken to make a split of 100 for one in the shares of Okalta. Some final adjustments are being made at Okalta No. 1 in order to effect a recovery of naptha from the wet gas. At No. 2 irons are being installed previous to deepening it to the lime. Drilling is proceeding at No. 3 to straighten the crooked hole.

The Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, at the annual meeting of the George Gold Copper Company removed all the directors of the company, with the exception of W. B. George and P. M. Linklater, and replaced them with Consolidated officials. At the same time the company ordered the George Copper head office closed out and removed to Trail, B.C., where it will be merged with the head office of the Consolidated, which has now assumed full control of the George subsidiary. The new directors were announced as George H. Kilburn, head of the Consolidated's exploration department on the Coast; T. W. Bingay, A. B. Ritchie, R. B. Fuller, engineering and technical officials of the Consolidated at Trail; and A. G. Cameron, solicitor for the Consolidated.

The meeting was attended by W. M. Archibald manager of the Consolidated and Sullivan Mine at Trail; Mel. O'Brien of Vancouver, chief Coast engineer, C.M. and S., and Mr. Kilburn.

Mr. O'Brien presented the annual report of the company, showing more than 6,000 feet of diamond drilling done on the George property. At 1,100 feet depth from the outcroppings a mineralized zone was opened, ten feet of which ran three per cent copper and the rest of the zone two per cent copper, with silver and gold values. Work on the property is to be extended and a tunnel driven.

"LOVE IS OF THE VALLEY"

By DAVID LYALL

Nevertheless, Jimmy did speak the irrevocable word the next afternoon when, in the soft greyness of one of those pensive afternoons February so often gives us, he walked with Ida Heron away beyond the Granton breakwaters till they came to a little strip of pebbly beach where there were no stragglers and where they sat down for a few minutes to rest on the upturned keel of a derelict boat.

They had not talked very much during their walk, excepting about impersonal things. Ida was looking very pretty. Her fair colorings defied the subjugation of black clothes, nay, the sombre hue set off her fairness; Jimmy's eyes were lovers eyes as he devoured them.

"Let's talk about ourselves now, Ida. Have you laid any plans for the future?"

"We lay them, but whose going to carry them out? I went with Lotta to see a lawyer this morning. He doesn't think they'll grab our furniture and things."

"Good heavens, why should they? It would be inhuman."

"Oh, but they might. I suppose it would be within their rights. So it's likely we'll stay where we are and take boarders."

"Take boarders, and you wait on them?" cried Jimmy aghast.

"Well, I'd have to help to do for them," she said with a little malicious gleam in her eyes. "We're hoping to keep on Lizzie Anderson; she would do the necessary waiting, if she didn't scare them out of the house with her tongue; Lotta will run the show and I'll provide the frills."

"What kind of lodgers? Ladies, I hope."

"Oh dear no! Lotta wouldn't look at them; calls them cats, and all sorts of other names which makes Bee positively squirm; gentlemen boarders, middle-aged and rich. They must be rich and willing to pay; these are the first essentials of a good boarder, according to Mrs. Heron."

"Does your sister approve of this?"

"She doesn't say much. She daren't criticize in the face of what she's going to do herself."

"What's that?" asked Jimmy interestedly.

Ida explained with much relish. After all, Jimmy Grier was a friend of the family, and there could be no harm in discussing the situation with which all their little world must soon become familiar.

His round eyes betrayed his astonishment.

"I can't imagine it! Miss Heron in a dressmaker's shop!"

"Salon," corrected Ida with a little smile. "Madame Theodore would have a thousand fits if she heard her exclusive place called a shop."

"It's the same in essence," maintained Jimmy stoutly, "cutting out frocks and trying them on other women. I don't believe she'll be a success."

"Tell me why you think that, Jimmy; yes, you must, no hedging, tell me at once."

"Won't she freeze people out, patronize them, make them wonder that they ever had presumption to go there?"

Ida's smile of amusement deepened. "It sums up a bit of Bee very accurately, I must admit. That's the line Lotta takes with Bee, but she's got another side."

"So Donald's wife says—she adores her."

"I know," said Ida with a little grimace, "and the same lady has no use for me."

"She knows nothing about you," said Jimmy, far too guileless to camouflage the truth. "So that's the programme! I don't like it for you, Ida—I wish to Heaven——"

"What do you wish, Jimmy?" asked Ida very softly, gently encouraging. She was just in the mood for a little tender passage, the hour and the place were favorable.

"Well, you know—if only I was through, and established in a good way of doing, you'd listen to me, wouldn't you?"

"Listen to what?" she asked provokingly. "You're very vague this afternoon, Jimmy, and we're dealing, unfortunately for us, with hard facts."

"Well, you know, I—I care about you—I want to marry you. Will you marry me, Ida, the moment I have anything decent to offer you?"

There was a crucial pause, for Ida Heron, though pleased with her first definite offer of marriage, and very fond of the offerer, had no passion or loyalty to give in exchange for his.

"I like you awfully, Jimmy," she said in a small rather halting voice, "but you see it's all so vague, do you think it would be wise or prudent to tie ourselves up now?"

"What has wisdom or prudence got to do with love?" cried Jimmy growing bolder now that he had cast the die.

"It has a good deal to do with life. If my poor father had been wise and prudent we shouldn't be where we are to-day," she said shrewdly.

"Oh, that's different! Look here, darling, I'll be through at mid-Summer and then I've got to have six months in hospital, and then I'd be ready to settle down."

"Where and what on?" she asked. "How do you stand financially, Jimmy? It sounds horrid mean and mercenary, I know, but I like you too well to tie myself like a millstone round your neck—I'm not going to do it."

"I don't stand well financially," he admitted with a very gallant honesty. "I've got money to pay back to my brother, but that's the only debt; but I'm going to make good, and if you'll promise, Ida, I'll work like a galley slave."

"And probably work yourself into the grave. We all thought you looked very thin last night, and as if you didn't ever get enough to eat."

"That's got nothing to do with it. Folks can live on very little when there's anything to be gained by it."

"I can't; I like good food and plenty of it, so does Lotta; Bee's the bun-and-coffee woman. What a pity you didn't think of Bee first!"

Jimmy Grier flushed a trifle angrily at this. Why should he have Beatrice Heron thrust upon him twice within the space of a few hours?

"I'd be scared to death of your sister, and he'll be a bold chap that asks her to share his lot," he said on the spur of the moment. "Well, listen, Ida, darling."

"I'm listening, but I haven't given you any right to call me that," she said demurely.

"But you don't hate it—I mean you do like me, don't you, Ida?"

"In moderation—no, go away, we haven't threshed it out yet, Jimmy. Where should we get furniture for our house? Where should we get a house at all? All these things cost money, you know, oceans of the money we haven't got."

"There are ways of getting them," he said vaguely.

"Yes, I know, the hire system, and then some day when you haven't paid up twopence halfpenny, or maybe only a penny farthing, some beastly men arrive with a cart and take everything away, and you sit on the bare boards, that happened to some people in our road. Lotta seemed to know all about it. That's how it's done."

"I wasn't thinking of the hire system of furniture," said poor Jimmy patiently, "but of things that might turn up."

"We couldn't marry, or even get engaged, Jimmy, on the prospect of things turning up. You see we happen to be two healthy human beings who need food to eat and clothes to wear and a house to live in, and I don't see where they are going to come from in your case for years and years."

"I'll get them!" cried Jimy in a passion of determination. "Other men have succeeded and so will I. Besides, my chief says I will, and both Don and Alison believe in me."

Queen Christina's Devout Wolfhound

A charming story is told of the late Queen Christina of Sweden.

This extraordinary woman, who loved athletics and field sports dearly and had a tender spot in her heart for all horses and dogs, had a dashing wolfhound named Caesar that throughout his life went with her to church.

Having been temporarily lamed by an accident, he was left alone in the palace one Sunday. Despite the pain it cost him, he leapt from a window and followed his royal mistress to the cathedral, where he set up a terrible yelping to be admitted. His cries were heard by the Queen, who ordered that he be let in. Soon Caesar appeared. Christina's finger pointed to her feet. The big dog lay down and remained like frozen marble until the end of the service.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KNICK

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

The Tinies were amazed to see the stars as mad as they could be. They stood and watched them tell the Thunder Man to stop his rain. At last the Thunder Man agreed that n more rainsterms did he need. Said he "I'll hold showers back a while, and that will be your gain."

"Oh, thank you," said one little star. "That plainly shows how kind you are and now we'll go back to our places high up in the sky. The light we have is very strong, and we will shine out all night long. We hope that we can pay you back for kindness, bye and bye."

But, as they started on their way the Thunder Man cried, loudly, "Hey! Why don't you take these Tinymites up in the sky with you? Each one's a friendly little man, so be nice, now as you can." One of the stars replied "Why sure! That's just what we will do."

Then, to the Tinymites it turned, and said, "There's much that can be earned. We're on our way. Just follow us and you will have some fun." The Tinymites agreed that this was something they would never miss. But Goppy cried, "How can we go? Through air we cannot run."

"Oh, look!" cried Scouty. "See who's here. The friendly Goofygoo brings cheer. He'll take us in our cabin, so that simplifies it all. We will not have to run through air. In fact we wouldn't even dare. I know we're much too heavy, and we'd surely take a fall."

The Goofygoo brought the cabin near and said, "Crawl in and have no fear. I'll trail those friendly little stars and it will be like play. So, all the bunch began to grin, and soon each one had crawled right in. In just another moment they were on their merry way.

To-morrow's Horoscope

THURSDAY, APRIL 18, 1929

Except in the early morning this should be a fortunate day, according to astrology.

It is pre-eminently a lucky sway for women, who should make the most of all business opportunities while this configuration prevails.

Theatres and all places of amusement benefit under this rule, which will bring into prominence many young players.

This is not a propitious day for trying any sort of business experiment and rather unfavorable for most initiative, even though it may be ordinarily practical.

The trend of books and dramas is to be light and clever, making for comedy and satire, if the stars are rightly read.

All through the Spring there is likely to be a tendency toward wrong thinking or super-criticism regarding persons who have been successful.

Envy and jealousy may be prevalent as new leaders suddenly rise to prominence.

A woman legislator now comes into the limelight because of poise and ability, astrologers foretell.

Late to-day there is a promising sign for those who seek employment, particularly for all who have brains and training to sell.

Health conservation will continue to be much discussed and the life span will be lengthened.

Sudden deaths which will increase in number as the year grows older are to teach wisdom in the use of physical energy after middle age, the seers prophesy.

This evening is a time when lovers should be wary, as it is easy to deceive under the aspect that dominates after sundown.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of success along lines most pleasant and desirable. They should not lend money.

Children born on this day probably will have great talent along artistic lines. The subjects of this sign achieve success if they work with big corporations such as motion picture organizations.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily and the Old Crow

Copyright, 1929, By McClure Newspaper Syndicate

By HOWARD R. GARIS

"Where are some of my old clothes," asked Uncle Wiggily of his wife one day. "An old ragged coat and a pair of trousers will do very nicely. I already have an old hat."

"For mercy sakes!" exclaimed Mrs. Longears. "What's the matter now? Are you going to a Hallowe'en party dressed like a tramp?"

"No," answered the rabbit gentleman. "Hallowe'en is a long way off and I'm not going to any party that I know of."

"Then you must want some old clothes to give to a poor tramp dog," went on the rabbit lady.

"No," and Uncle Wiggily laughed. "You would never guess so I will take pity on you and tell you. I want some of my old, ragged clothes to make a scarecrow. This morning I saw an old crow flying over the field where I have planted some early corn. I know, that black bird is just waiting for a chance to dig up the kernels I have put under the ground. So I will make something to scare him."

"Yes, I would," said Mrs. Longears. "I'll get you some old clothes!"

A little later Uncle Wiggily was making a scarecrow, or image of himself, stuffed with straw and held up straight by a pole stuck in his corn field. With an old, tall silk hat on the head, a ragged coat and trousers filled with holes, the scarecrow, from a distance, looked just as if old Uncle Wiggily himself were standing there with a big stick in his paws.

"What is it now?" asked the rabbit.

"There!" said the rabbit gentleman when he had finished making the stuffed figure. "I guess that will keep Old Crow away!"

Suddenly, behind him, Uncle Wiggily heard a sound like:

"Ha! Ha! Ha!"

"Who are you and what are you laughing at?" cried the rabbit as he hopped around.

"I am Old Crow, and I wasn't laughing. I was only singing," came the answer. And from the beak of a black bird perched on the fence came the cry of:

"Caw! Caw! Caw!" it really sounded like harsh laughter.

"Are you not making fun of the figure I have just stuffed, Old Crow?" asked the rabbit.

"Not exactly laughing or making fun," cawed Old Crow. "That would not be polite, for the figure looks like you, Uncle Wiggily and I like you. But I could laugh, if I wished, for it is silly for you, or any other farmer rabbit, to think he can scare crows that way. We are too wise. We know the figures in the fields are only stuffed."

"Well then," said Uncle Wiggily, "there is no use of all my work."

"No!" cawed the Old Crow. "But why do you want to scare me away from your field, Uncle Wiggily?"

"So you will not take all the corn I have planted," answered the rabbit. "I want my corn to grow into ears that I and my little rabbits may eat it and have some to pop next Winter. But you will pull it up before it grows if I do not stop you."

"Yes," cawed Old Crow, "I will eat a little of your corn, for I am hungry. But also, when I pull up corn, I pick and eat bad bugs and worms that would do more harm to your corn after it is grown. So, in a way, I am helping you. I don't eat much corn, and I do eat a lot of bad bugs and worms."

"Ha!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "I never thought of that. I'll take this figure down since it is of no use. And I'll put out a little pile of corn kernels each day, Old Crow. You can eat them along with the bad bugs and worms and leave the corn that I have planted alone."

"Yes, I'll do that," promised the black bird.

Then Uncle Wiggily took back to his bungalow the old coat and trousers that he had stuffed with straw to make a scarecrow. He was getting some kernels to put in a pile for the black bird to eat when, all of a sudden, the bunny heard once more:

"Caw! Caw! Caw!"

"What is it now?" asked the rabbit hopping out of his barn. He saw Old Crow flying toward him and dangling from the bird's beak was Uncle Wiggily's gold watch and chain.

"I found this on the ground where you had set up the scarecrow," cawed the black bird. "We crows have sharp eyes for finding anything that shines and I found this. Is it yours?"

"Oh, why of course—yes!" cried Mr. Longears. "That's my watch that I have been looking for a long time. I must have left it in that old coat and it dropped out when I stuffed it for a scarecrow. Thank you, ever so much."

"Don't mention it," cawed the black bird. Then an extra helping of corn was given to him and all Summer he caught bad bugs and worms.

And if the bottle of peppermint will give the handkerchief a few drops to make believe it has perfume, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and his sneeze.

U.S. SAILORS COMING HERE

Contingent From Across the Line Will Participate in May 24 Festivities

Word has been received by Harold Palmer, secretary of the May 24 celebrations committee, that the United States Navy will be represented at the Victoria Day festivities. The United States Consulate has received a letter in which regret is expressed by the Secretary of the Navy that a unit of the naval fleet cannot be sent. However, Capt. G. NAMES CHOSEN FOR THREE NEW N.Y.K. SHIPS

Motor Liners Now Building For Victoria-Orient Service to Be Here Next Year

The three new motor liners now building in Japan for the Victoria-Seattle-Orient run of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, will be named the Hikawa Maru, the Hiye Maru and Heian Maru, after three famous shrines in the land of the rising sun, it was announced to A. H. Hebb, local agent, this morning, by company headquarters in Seattle.

The first ship to be routed into service from the Orient to Victoria and Seattle will be the Hikawa Maru, which is expected early in January of next year. The others will follow within four months.

When these three liners reach the Pacific Coast in regular service, Victoria will be linked up with the Orient by a fleet of the finest Japanese liners in any part of the world. As a first step in this improvement programme the N.Y.K. brought into service on the North Pacific early last month the liner Mishima Maru. She is a much finer vessel than any of the other N.Y.K. ships now in this route, and carries a much larger number of passengers. She is expected back in Victoria on June 1.

Although the date is yet uncertain, Mr. Hebb expects that the liner Siberia Maru will be here on December 1! in regular service, to be followed shortly afterwards by her sister ship, the Korea Maru, both at present in service to the Orient out of San Francisco. Both the Siberia and the Korea will be released from that run when the new motor liners, now nearly completed in Japan, are put on the run. The first is expected early in June.

Two Thousand Settlers Trek to Farms In West

Winnipeg, April 17.—Within the next twenty-four hours a great increase of British settlers will arrive in Western Canada through the movement west over Canadian Pacific lines of no less than four special trains from the liners Metagama, Montrose, Melita, Thuringian and Scythia. The passenger list of these specials runs close on to 2,000 souls and the proportion of young Britishers is the largest for many a year—a total of 241 trainees. Young men with some training in agriculture will be distributed from Winnipeg over the West by Canadian Pacific officials. Fifty of these youths are from Ireland, the first to arrive here from the Emerald Isle. There are seventy young women listed for Western settlement, nine young English boys coming under the wing of the Church of England.

The 3,000 family scheme will bring in a group on the Montrose special—there are five large families for Alberta in this party, which includes the season's first large family, the McTaniel clan of fifteen for Macdonald. The Lovat settlement scheme of placing British people in cottages on the land for one year will get several families for Alberta, the first to be placed under the new plans.

The thriving settlement at Clan Donald started in 1926 for Hebrideans by Father MacDonnell, has grown to more than 100 families. The Melita special will bring in eight more families of fifty-three souls, ticketed for placement in their own farms in the Clan Donald settlement, under the auspices of the Canadian Pacific Colonization Department.

SS. LEVIATHAN CARRIES WINES FOR TRAVELERS

Southampton, Eng., April 17—Only wines will be carried by the liner Leviathan for its travelers, and then only on the westward voyages.

David Burke, general manager of the United States Lines in Southampton to-day aboard the Leviathan, said that would be the policy of the ship's new owners.

He declared there was no intention of selling liquor over open bars, nor any idea of stocking whisky or any other form of spirits.

"Wines only will be carried and the quantity allowed on each westbound trip will be determined by the number of passengers booked for the vessel," said Mr. Burke. "There will be a conference in London this week to decide upon the amount per head. The drinks will be served to passengers in their cabins and to obtain them they will have to place an order with the chief steward, but once the liquor has been served to them, they will be able to consume it either in the smoking-room or the dining-room."

Conference Meets To Discuss Rules Of Safety At Sea

London, April 17—The delegates of more than a dozen countries assembled at the Foreign Office here yesterday for the first meeting of the International Conference on the Safety of Life at Sea. They were welcomed by the President of the Board of Trade, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, who read a message from King George greeting the delegates and wishing them success.

The conference, meeting after an interval of sixteen years, is expected to last some weeks. It will review the convention of 1913 and will make an effort to apply improved safety-first rules to ocean travel.
